GRAND TRUNK TO GET QUICK ACTION

The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange this afternoon held a special meeting to urge upon the Massachusetts Legislature the necessity of speedily permitting the Grand Trunk to enter Boston.

The Boston City Council will at its meeting next Wednesday afternoon consider the resolutions urging the Legislature to make possible the entrance of this great railroad system into Boston.

STATE'S BUSINESS MEN ARE AROUSED.

Announcement of the action of the Real Estate exchange and the City Council came quickly to-day following the filing of the petition of the Grand Trunk. Business men all over the State are aroused to enthusiasm over the coming of the great railroad system, and as shown by the action announced to the Real Estate Exchange and the Boston City Council desires that the Legislature sweep aside and suspend all rules, so that the work dirt will soon be flying over the Massachusetts right of way into Boston of the Grand Trunk Railroad.

The AMERICAN has received congratulations from all sides for the success of the work which it started to bring the Grand Trunk to Boston. Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, and business men all over the State have declared that to the AMERICAN alone is due the credit for starting the Grand Trunk building into Boston.

In the resolutions to be offered by the City Council meeting the thanks of the Council are extended toward the AMERICAN for its splendid work.

Congressman Curley wired to-day from Washington when he heard of the Grand Trunk application to come into Boston:

Congressman Curley's Dispatch.

"Good work for the AMERICAN."

Text of the Petition.

Here is the petition of the Grand Trunk Railroad (the Massachusetts corporate name for the Grand Trunk is the Southern New England Railroad Corporation), asking for permission to build through Massachusetts into Boston:

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in General Court assembled:

Respectfully represents the Southern New England Railroad Corporation that it is a corporation duly established under the laws of said Commonwealth, and authorized to construct a line of railroad from a point on the New London Northern Railroad in Palmer, in the County of Hampshire, in said Commonwealth, to the Rhode Island State line at Rockstone, in the County of Worcester, in the Commonwealth; that your petitioner is about to commence the construction of said line of railroad and prosecute the work to the early completion thereof; that there is a strong public demand for the extension and construction of the railroad of the petitioner into the city of Worcester, in the county of Worcester, and for the construction by the petitioner of extensions of its railroad and privileges of railroad into Boston and to tide water in the county of Suffolk; that public necessity requires the construction of such extensions and new lines by the petitioner, and an enlargement and extension of the corporate powers of the petitioner in order that it may be enabled to build the lines and extensions; that the construction of such lines and extensions can be advantageously undertaken by the petitioner in connection with the construction of its line already authorized.

Wherefore your petitioner prays for the enactment of legislation substantially in accord with the accompanying bill.

SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND RAILROAD CORPORATION.
(Signed) E. H. FITZHUGH, President.

Will Hurry Legislation.

Under the usual rules of procedure, the clerk of the House, with whom the new legislation was filed Saturday by Representative

WALCOTT H. JOHNSON DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Walcott Howe Johnson, a member of the firm of C. F. Hovey & Co., died today at his home, No. 7 Commonwealth avenue, after a week's illness of pneumonia. Mr. Johnson was fifty-two years of age and a graduate of Williams College in the class of 1882. After being graduated from college he entered the employ of the Hovey Company and was later admitted to the firm.

Neglected Colds Are Dangerous. Cure them promptly with Father John's Medicine.

Pictures to-day by American staff photographer show crowds of strikers gathering during snow and rain storm near the Washington mills, having been driven back by State troops and hundreds of policemen, many of the latter summoned from nearby cities.

TAFT AROUSED BY HITCHCOCK

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—President Taft sent to-day for Postmaster-General Hitchcock to explain why he announced he would recommend to Congress the government ownership of telegraph lines without first consulting the President. Postmaster-General Hitchcock arrived at the White House at noon and immediately went into conference with the President.

From the White House came word before the arrival of the Postmaster-General that any view which Mr. Hitchcock might express upon the question of government ownership of telegraph lines or any other public utility was his own personal view and was not the policy of the administration.

At the same time the suggestion was out out by the White House that only the Secretary of the Treasury may make direct recommendations to Congress and that all reports and recommendations which the Postmaster-General has to make to Congress must pass through the hands of the President. Therefore, if the Post

POOR OVERSEERS AROUSE MAYOR

Mayor Fitzgerald severely criticized the overseers of the poor to-day during a conference of two of the members. The Mayor was angry when he found that the board had taken no action on the matter of relieving the children of John Dupley of No. 90 Tudor street, South Boston, who were found huddled in a trunk yesterday, almost frozen.

He wants the overseers to pay particular attention to cases of destitution which are turned over to private societies for aid, and he instructed the board to pass a vote instructing the department visitors to investigate and find out definitely whether the private societies properly care for the cases which are sent to them.

The Mayor found to his surprise that he Overseers of the Poor had taken no pains to keep in touch with the courts relative to the sentencing of wage earners to the Island, leaving large families destitute.

In the Dupley case both father and mother are at Deer Island, and it is the opinion of the Mayor, the first duty of the department was to see that proper provisions should be made for the children.

As a result of the conference the Mayor intends to get in touch with the heads of departments having charge of the welfare of the poor so that a better system of supervision may be devised.

THREE HURT IN B. & M. CRASH

Three people were slightly injured and a score more or less shaken up, as the result of a rear end collision of two trains in the East Somerville station to-day.

A train which leaves the North Station at 8:17 for Salem was standing in the station, when a Beverly train, which leaves two minutes later, collided with it.

A passenger who was standing on the rear platform, rushed through the train when he saw the Beverly train approaching, and told all the passengers to leave. The majority of them were standing up when the crash occurred and they were thrown to the floor.

Miss Ethel Hackett of No. 36 Wallace street, Somerville, Miss Mary Malcolm of Cambridge, a student at the Salem Normal School, and Francis J. Coyne of No. 113A Euclid street, Lynn, were slightly injured.

LIABILITY LAW CONSTITUTIONAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Employers' Liability law of 1908 was to-day declared constitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

RIOTERS ARE SENT TO JAIL

LAWRENCE, Jan. 15.—The mill district of Lawrence was guarded late this afternoon by nearly 1,000 armed militia and policemen.

The situation, with 25,000 operatives on strike, grew tenser as the hours passed. An outbreak was feared at any time.

Governor Foss ordered five companies of militia from Lowell and Haverhill to reinforce the three local companies on duty.

A warrant was issued this afternoon for the arrest of Joseph J. Ettor of New York, believed to be the principal instigator of violence.

In the various clashes between the strikers and militia and police to-day many persons were injured. One striker was seriously bayonetted.

Forty arrests had been made up to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A committee of twenty-eight strikers met the Mayor and City Council at City Hall in conference this afternoon. The Mayor laid down the law to the strikers.

MAYOR WARNS THE STRIKERS.

"If you want fight," declared the Mayor, "you'll get all you want of it. I'm going to have no more of this rioting. If there is, the armed men will shoot. This has gone too far. We won't have any more of it. Now I want you to understand that. If you don't do it you will take the consequences. This is the last warning you're going to get."

Philip Maroney, a striker, arranged for the conference with the City Council. Before leaving the Mayor to get his committee together Maroney said:

"I don't want to bring the men here if they are going to be arrested."

"Well, we're going to arrest Ettor," he was told.

Finally it was agreed that Ettor would not be arrested if he came with the committee, but this program was mapped out by the Mayor:

"We'll give Ettor two hours to get out of Lawrence and we'll have some soldiers with sharp bayonets to see that he does it."

Strikers Before Court.

A special session of court was called this afternoon to try these arrested. The first man arraigned was Vincenzo Lorazzo, who was charged with carrying a revolver and a knife. The prisoner made no defence and Judge Mahoney sentenced him to two years in the House of Correction. He appealed and was held in $1,500 bail. He was locked up in default of bail.

Antonio Orlando was charged with shooting with attempt to kill in three counts. The prisoner denied it. He said that he did not have a revolver. Four witnesses swore that they saw him with a revolver. He was held in $3,000 for the action of the Grand Jury.

A committee of nineteen representing the strikers and a committee of three representing the City Government held a conference, beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon, to see if there was not some basis on which the strikers and their employers could reach an agreement.

Big Mob Jeers Militia.

Nearly 1,000 operatives joined the strikers at noon, between 500 and 600 from the Atlantic and between 200 and 400 from the Pacific mills.

A mob that numbered something like 3,000 gathered about these two mills, which are close together, shortly before 2 o'clock and hooted and jeered at the militia who were there on guard.

It was feared that there would be a serious clash at any time. As a result of the tense situation the entire city was thrown into the utmost excitement all day, business being seriously affected.

Fearing an outbreak, Mayor Scanlon refused to allow the strikers to meet in mass meeting in City Hall, this afternoon, as they had planned. The additional militia were called out after a conference between Adjutant General Gardner W. Pearson, who is in Lawrence, and Mayor Scanlon. Companies C, D and K of the Sixth Regiment and Company M of the Ninth Regiment at Lowell, and a company from the Eighth Regiment at Lowell were ordered to the city.

In all there were about 25,000 operatives on strike this afternoon, and it was believed that every mill would be closed down tight by night.

The mills which have closed entirely with number of men employed are: Wood mill, 6,000; Ayer mills, 4,000; Washington mills, 3,000; owned by American Woolen Company; Arlington mills, 500; Pemberton, 600; Lawrence Duck, 1,000, and the Everett, 2,400, manufacturing cotton goods or cottons and worsteds. The Prospect mills, employing 700, lower and upper Pacific mills and Atlantic mills, employing about 4,000 each, and the Uswoco and Frank Lewis mills, with a total of about 3,000 hands, were running on a very small scale.

Attempt to Ditch Freight.

So angry were the strikers because the militia had been called out that a gang of them tried to derail a freight car containing mill material on the Boston & Lowell road this afternoon. Failing to do that they took revenge by smiting the train.

The situation was regarded in pretty safe condition this afternoon with the soldiers stretched about the city and in front of the mills with drawn bayonets. The only fear was that the soldiers might be called upon to fire on the mob, calling forth similar action from the armed strikers. In that case the loss of life would be severe.

The efforts of the authorities were concentrated in trying to arrest the leaders of the strike, or at least, those of an incendiary character. It was believed that if these firebrands were taken from the mob that there would be no further outbreaks.

Nearly all of those arrested were armed with revolvers, stilettos and in some cases razors.

Arrested for Shooting.

One of those arrested is Vincenzo Lonstre, caught by State Detectives Flynn and Thompson, as he fired a shot from a revolver. He had an automatic revolver, a belt of cartridges, a stiletto and a knife. He was locked up charged with assault with intent to kill.

Another prisoner is Antonio Orlando who was arrested in the attack made on the Lower Pacific Mill. A man stood on the rock directing a stream of water on the mob. Orlando is charged with having fired a shot at this man and will be tried for assault with attempt to kill.

Leo Xiten, a labor agitator, well known here, was arrested while making an incendiary speech in Essex street.

Dominico Deceasare was bayonetted. The bayonet went almost through his body. He was taken to the Lawrence Hospital. His condition is serious. Many of those hurt were taken to their homes.

It is expected that the trouble will be long continued, and 100 cots and 1000 blankets were ordered to-day for the armory.

When a mob of 3,000 or more was attacked by the soldiers in front of the Atlantic Mills. The mob had made various attempts to get at other mills but were held back by the police.

At the Atlantic Mills there was a sharp clash. Hose streams were turned into the crowd and many were mowed down with cold water.

Then Company F of the militia was summoned. They rushed into the armory and charged the crowd with bayonets.

Militia Drives Crowd Before It.

Intense excitement followed the appearance of the soldiers in the street. The mob was driven to a frenzy.

Company L followed Company G. That in turn was followed by Company F. The last named company carried hickory clubs instead of guns and bayonets, although the men were armed with revolvers.

The three companies of 280 men went right at the mob, driving the crowd along Canal street.

In the crowd were a number of firebrands from New York, who urged the men to resist. But the sight of the guns served to quell their warlike spirit.

Men were knocked down who refused to move quickly enough. Others were clubbed and severely wounded with bayonets.

Ambulances were soon rattling through the streets and the wounded were carried to the hospitals.

The calling out of the militia followed attempts on the part of the strikers to rush several bridges earlier in the day leading to various mills.

Shots had been fired by strikers, or somebody in the crowd, but nobody was hit.

The mill people had prepared to fight the mob with great lines of hose. In the Washington mill they had lines with a water pressure of 120 pounds ready. The crowd tried to cross the bridge leading to this mill.

There were about thirty policemen at the point, Canal and Mill streets. These policemen with drawn clubs fought the crowd back.

Then from the mill came three great shoots of water, like fire streams. They poured into the crowd. Men and women were knocked down and rolled over, wet to the skin.

The mob left this mill and went up the canal toward the Lower Pacific Mills. The water soaking infuriated the leaders. Many of those in the crowd drew revolvers.

At the Lower Pacific Mills the mob found a smaller garrison of policemen guarding the bridge. Another attempt was made to rush the bridge. But at this point it happened there were a number of the State police under Captain William Proctor.

Among Proctor's men were Fred Flynn, Barrett, Thompson, Frantic and Wells. These men waded into the mob and forced them back. Then came another attack from four lines of hose. It was at this place that the shots were fired in the crowd.

Heads Broken In Clash.

The shots were fired into the air, it is believed, rather than at the police. Captain Proctor leaped into the struggling mass of wet humanity in an attempt to find the men who fired the shots, but was unable to do so.

Finally, after a bitter struggle in which many heads were cracked, the mob was driven back. It headed for the canal toward other mills.

Three arrests were made at this time. The men were hustled into the mill and put there under guard.

The mob, however, had increased in size and seemed bent on violence. Mayor Scanlon at this time decided it was time to call for help from other cities, desiring to "the very precaution to take care of the situation without having to call the militia.

Call Sent to Boston.

A call for help was sent to the Boston police and to the police department of Lowell, Haverhill, Salem, Lynn, Cambridge and Everett.

Fifteen Pinkerton men, under Joseph P. Colbert, superintendent of the Boston office, reached here to-day and went to work in the interest of the mill owners. They are trying to ascertain just who is responsible for the violence and destruction of property.

The violence of the mob reached its climax when they reached the Atlantic Mills. Here they were received with charges of cold water but the stream seemed not so effective as at the other places. The members of the attacking force of strikers were in a fighting mood by this time. They began to smash the bridge. They fought with the police who were opposing their progress. Clubs were used freely and men were knocked down.

Mayor Issues Call.

It was when this clash was at its worst that the Mayor sounded the call for the militia.

At the Atlantic Mill it was found that the mob could reach it by way of the railroad bridge, which could not be covered by the cold water hose. So about 1,000 shouting men and women passed over this bridge, the rest of the crowd attacking the canal bank that passed by the rear of the mill.

There was a small guard at the railroad bridge, but it was ineffectual in the face of the large force. Many of these were armed with knives, revolvers and clubs.

Only in an engine under side afforded ammunition for the mob. They snatched the coal from the tender and smashed all the windows in the building on the side. Then they rushed across the bridge and gained access to the mill from the rear. The watchmen and workers were as nothing in the hands of the strikers.

Coming up by this flank movement on the force armed with clubs the party was captured and the hose taken away from them. It was at this time, with the mill entirely in the hands of the strikers, that the militia were called out and made the attack, dispersing the mob.

Word was received from Lynn that fifteen policemen under Sergeant Mark Murphy had been started to Lawrence. Each of the squad was armed with two extra rounds of ammunition.

The trouble was precipitated to-day by Joseph Ettor and other firebrands who were lifted to the shoulders of men in the crowd and from that eminence made fiery speeches, advising force. This advice was directly opposite to that of Vincenzo Maroney, a weaver and striker, who also made an address from the shoulders of strikers advising the strikers to go to their meetings to-day and to remain peaceful.

The violent element was in the majority, however, and the march against the mills began.

Following the arrival of a force of policemen from Lynn, there came a squad of twenty men from Lowell. They were under Lieutenant Martin Connors and Sergeants Ryan and Duncan.

Guard Police Station.

When the prisoners were taken to police headquarters it was found that every one of them was armed with revolvers, razors and stilettos. Fearing that an attempt might be made to rescue the prisoners, a guard from Company F of the local militia was thrown around the police station. Commissioner of Public Safety Dana remained at the police station in charge, while Mayor Scanlon took up his quarters at the armory, directing the situation from there.

Strike leaders to-day had circulated handbills printed on yellow or red paper. The handbills read:

Textile Workers and Trades and All Nationalities!

Listen.

WARNING!

Do not listen to the promises of the bosses.

Do not go to work except on the word of the strike committee.

Stay out of the Wood Mill, the Ayer Mill, the Washington Mill, the Duck Mill, the Pemberton Mill, the Lower Pacific Mills, the Atlantic Mills and the Arlington Mills.

Sees Financial Aid Coming.

James J. Ettor, the strike leader, declared early to-day that the strike would not suffer for financial assistance. The formulation of the demands to be exacted of the mills was not completed, Ettor said that he thought this would be done by to-morrow night.

In referring to the delay in rounding the strikers' forces Ettor and leader Ettor explained that a large proportion of the strikers are non-unionists. He expected to have prepared to-day a statement setting forth the position of the strikers.

RITCHIE CONDEMNS "10 YEARS OF DUMPS"

Former Health Commissioner John Ritchie, Jr., in a letter to Mayor Fitzgerald to-day urges the veto of any garbage contract which would bind the city of Boston ten more years of dumps. He says experts on sanitation agree that such methods for the disposal of refuse or garbage are antiquated and unhealthful, and that, regardless of the opinion of commercial bodies which have indorsed the Boston Board of Sanitary & Development Company contract, the experts of Technology, Harvard and other institutions indorse the Mayor's attitude in refusing to make the contract until he has made a thorough investigation.

HOLD PRISONER AFTER ATTEMPT AT ARSON

Nicola Detano, thirty-three, of No. 133 Eliot street, was held in $1,000 for a hearing, January 24, when he was arraigned before Judge Ely in the Municipal Court to-day charged with arson. It is alleged that Detano attempted to burn down the five-story building at No. 1344 Tremont street, endangering the lives of many people in adjoining buildings. Detano conducts a shoe store in the building, and early to-day Roundsman Officer Haverty and Sergeant Lagrance street station discovered a blaze as Detano was leaving the building. The floor of the store was saturated with kerosene oil.

ICE-BOUND SCHOONERS RESCUED BY GRESHAM

VINEYARD HAVEN, Jan. 15.—The Forest City, forty-nine days out from Savannah, and the Edward F. Smith, from Brunswick, Ga., both Boston bound, have been towed here by the revenue cutter Gresham after having been caught in the ice of Handkerchief Shoal. The Gresham was compelled to cut its way through solid ice for miles before reaching the vessels. Both schooners had run short of food and water, and the crews were near exhaustion with the cold.

STRIKERS VOTE TO CONTINUE

Unanimous vote to continue their strike until won was taken at a meeting of the Longshoremen's Trade Council at Roughan's building, Charlestown, to-day. The Council also voted "to condemn the cowardly actions of the two men who took it upon themselves to interfere between the striking longshoremen and the steamship agents."

Three thousand men along the waterfront still are out, 2,500 longshoremen and 500 transatlantic clerks, ship carpenters and Boston & Albany Grand Junction freight handlers. The Boston & Maine freight handlers, who went out at the Mystic and the Hoosac Tunnel docks, returned to work this morning under vote of their local assembly.

Tentative plans were discussed at the meeting this morning for amalgamation with the Federation of Waterfront Employes, now being formed by the New York unions. This federation is planned to embrace all seamen, marine firemen, cooks, stewards and longshoremen from Galveston to Portland. This would give the striking longshoremen of Boston the combined support of all unions in question all along the Atlantic coast.

30,000 OBSERVE HOLY NAME FEAST

The Holy Name Society of the Boston diocese met in thirty places to celebrate the Feast of the Holy Name. The total attendance at the meetings reached 30,000. The most important meeting was that held in the Cathedral for the men of the Boston district.

VAIL OPPOSES HITCHCOCK PLAN

master-General wants to endorse the general proposition for the purchase by the government of the telegraph companies he can only do it formally through the President.

Theodore N. Vail, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was at his farm in Lyndonville, Vt., to-day, when told of the plan of Postmaster-General Hitchcock to take over the telegraph companies. Mr. Vail said:

"I do not care to comment upon the Hitchcock plan now. My views upon the government ownership of telegraph lines are well known.

"It is known that President Vail opposes government ownership of telegraph lines. He said only a few days ago:

"Should the government take over the telegraph and telephone lines in the United States, I believe it would not be long before the American people would be clamoring for their return to private ownership. The masses in no country use either the telephone or the telegraph. It is only that class who can afford the convenience of this means of quick intercommunication. But government ownership would distribute the burden of the cost of maintenance alike on all classes."

Plan Proves Success.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock will within a short time urge upon Congress the acquisition of the telegraph lines of the United States by the government and their operation as a part of the postal service.

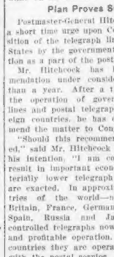
Mr. Hitchcock has had this recommendation under consideration for more than a year. After a thorough study of the operation of government controlled lines and postal telegraph systems in foreign countries he has decided to recommend the matter to Congress.

"Should this recommendation be adopted," said Mr. Hitchcock in a statement of his intention, "I am convinced it would result in important economies and in materially lower telegraph rates than now are exacted. In approximately fifty countries of the world—notably in Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, Russia and Japan—government controlled telegraphs now are in successful and profitable operation. In many of the countries they are operated in connection with the postal service.

Would Cost $250,000,000.

"Because of the more extensive organization maintained by the postal service and its freedom from taxation and other charges to which private corporations are subject, the government undoubtedly could afford greater facilities, at lower rates, than are afforded by companies now conducting the telegraph business.

Weak Backs Made Strong



Backache in most cases is kidney ache and usually accompanied by irregularities of the urine. To remove the pain and weakness, you must cure the kidneys. Do this with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. George L. Mott, 99 North St., Quincy, Mass., says: "I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells, and frequently had to grasp something to keep from falling. My sight was affected, and often appeared before me. My back also caused me great suffering. After using Doan's Kidney Pills, I began their use, and after I had taken the contents of five boxes I was permanently cured."

LAZY LIVER, BILIOUSNESS, HEADACHE, COATED TONGUE OR A BAD STOMACH.

Young men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Tuesday 4-Hour Specials—9 A. M. to 1 P. M.

All Seasonable and Wanted Specials at Prices Far Less Than Regular

HENRY SIEGEL CO

4 Minutes by Tunnel to North Sta. Nearest Big Store to South Station.

Largest and Finest Restaurant in New England. Music 12 to 2

The story and reason for these four hour specials is solely to stimulate and promote larger morning business. From about one o'clock until closing time our store is always crowded and our facilities taxed to their utmost and we take this means of bringing more people to do their shopping in the mornings. Every Tuesday we make very special preparations to give to the people of New England bona-fide values and nothing appears in this announcement but items that are not only marked at less than regular price, but items that also must be seasonable and in present demand. And then Tuesday is a doubly important day for S. & H. Stamp collectors, for they get double stamps with all their purchases all day.

OUR GREAT FEBRUARY

Furniture Sale

Begins Monday, January 22, 1912

Bigger, Greater and Better Than Ever

Stocks are now complete and ready for your inspection. Come in and make your selections—we will take your order any day this week. We illustrate below a few of the great values to be found in this sale.

Dresser or Chiffonier

Of Birdseye Maple, Tuna Mahogany and Golden Quartered Oak, Special . . . $15

Positive $28.00 Value

We illustrate just one of the designs—please remember that there are fully a dozen others, equally as attractive, to select from. Full size dressers and chiffoniers, full swell front, claw feet, wood knobs, with a beautifully shaped and very large mirror. Choice of chiffonier or dresser..... $15.00

Mahogany Pedestals

Reg. Price $4.00 $1.95

Positively a sensation at this price—a mahogany pedestal for the low price of $1.95. Enough for one day's selling—no matter how many of these we could get, they hardly would last more than one day, at..... $1.95

Rattan Rockers

Reg. Price $4.50 $1.95

1000 of these rockers to be sold in the February sale, and we do not expect them to last more than two days. Full rattan bands at the back and a full roll around entire frame.

Become a Member of Our Furniture Club

Membership in our Furniture Club will enable you to furnish your home complete or in part on the Monthly Payment Club Plan for less than cash prices elsewhere. If you need $25 or $500 worth of goods from any of our Home-Furnishing Departments you can get them now by joining our Club and pay for them by the month. Write or consult the Manager of our Contract Dept., Fourth Floor, who will be pleased to give full details.

NOTE It is a common practice of furniture stores to refuse to sell their ADVERTISING LEADERS to customers purchasing on the MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN. No such discrimination is practised here. Anybody purchasing a fair amount of our other furniture will be entitled to share in the ADVERTISING LEADERS.

IRISH LEAGUE IN FUND APPEAL

Michael J. Ryan, national president of the United Irish League of America and City solicitor of Philadelphia, has sent out an appeal for funds to aid the Irish party in its fight for Home Rule.

He points out that $50,000 of the amount pledged following the convention in Buffalo a year ago still remains to be raised.

His appeal reads, in part:

"No year for a century dawns more auspiciously for Ireland than does 1912. The centuries old struggle seems about to be won. From every side comes the message of cheer and promise. Home Rule means that which the words indicate, and nothing less—the rule of the people.

"Remittances may be sent to John O'Callaghan, national secretary, No. 49 Globe Building, or to T. B. Fitzpatrick, national treasurer of the league, No. 104 Kingston street; and all that is sent, with out diminution of any kind for salaries, will be at once forwarded to Mr. Redmond, the Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Donnell and John Fitzgibbon, M. P., the national trustees in Dublin."

Mayor Fitzgerald Says

that the Ice Carnival which is to be held by the AMERICAN on the Charles River Basin next Saturday is a splendid idea. Do you know all about this Carnival? If not, see TO-DAY'S AMERICAN.

TRADE UNION AS AID TO ACTORS

Trade unionism as a solution of the economic evils confronting vaudeville and acts in vaudeville was favorably received by those in attendance at a big mass meeting in the Orpheum Theatre. Those behind the movement made tentative plans for a series of similar meetings.

Open Daily Till 9:30—Saturdays 10:3

I ask YOU to help me raise that $600,000

I'M an extremist. I never do things by halves. When I found myself confronting the dangerous condition of being tremendously overstocked, I simply laid my case before you and slashed my prices in the most sensational manner since I've been in business. Now I ask YOU to put aside all skepticism, all prejudice, and open your eyes to this absolutely marvellous saving opportunity long enough at least to come and see how frightfully I have ripped into the prices of these superb GEORGES Custom MODEL CLOTHES. And having seen, I know I shall have your help in raising that $600,000.

SEEK PASTOR IN GIRL DEATH CASE

PITTSBURG, Jan. 15.— Country-wide search is being made today for the Rev. W. D. McFarland, head of the United Presbyterian Mission School at Greenville, Texas, who is wanted in connection with the death and secret burial of Miss Elsie D. Coe. The case is similar in many ways to the Richeson case in Boston.

The Rev. Dr. McFarland came here some years ago from Springfield, Mass., where he had been engaged in teaching and news paper work. An inquest in the case was opened to-day by Coroner S. C. Jamison. It is said that a Chicago banker, who formerly lived here, is under surveillance.

Miss Coe was when she was twenty-eight year old, was a stenographer and clerk in the Pittsburg fifth school, with which Dr. McFarland was connected as head of the academic department. She was admitted to the Homeopathic Hospital on January 6 and died on Friday as the result, the coroner says, of two bungling operations of a criminal character.

Coroner Jamison secured a statement from the woman, in which he says, Miss Coe named Dr. McFarland as the man who twice sought to help her, without the necessity of calling a physician. The coroner avers that she named another man as being partly responsible for her previous health.

Coroner Jamison conferred with District Attorney W. A. Blakeley, who ordered the arrest of the Rev. McFarland, who was known to have been in Pittsburg recently. It was found he had fled to Texas, and the girl was taken by her mother to the Homeopathic Institution.

McFarland was graduated in medicine and then, preferring theology, was finally ordained as a minister. He preached for a while and then came to Pittsburg, where his brilliancy attracted the attention of Dr. Reasco he sought and secured a position as instructor in the public schools, finally being promoted to be one of the academic department of the High School.

McFarland and his wife took quarters in the stone apartment building in this fashionable suburb of Homewood where Miss Coe, her widowed mother and sister also had a flat. Ingratiating himself with the Coe family, he became a frequent visitor, and finally Miss Coe went to the High School as a stenographer.

In June, 1911, McFarland accepted the the post at the head of the Greenville School, a few miles from his old home at Cedarville, Tenn., where he once lived.

CREDITORS TO EJECT ATTORNEY LEWIS

Creditors of Edwin C. Lewis, a lawyer, living on Waverly avenue, Newton, to-day served ejectment papers on his through Deputy Constable Walter Jones. They were served on Lewis last October, and while the furniture was being removed from the house he attempted suicide by slashing his throat. To-day the lawyer's family is said to be ill, and it is thought that when the weather clears it will be taken to the street. When Lewis was served Oct. 1 he disappeared and his whereabouts is not known even to his wife.

RUSH WARSHIP TO ECUADORAN PORT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—The Navy Department to-day ordered the armored cruiser Maryland, with the Pacific fleet now at Honolulu, to proceed with all haste to Guayaquil, Ecuador, to protect American interests in that country. The armored cruiser is now at Guayaquil.

FIX RICHESON'S FATE WEDNESDAY

The fate of Clarence V. T. Richeson, now lying in a cell in the Charles street jail under sentence of death for the murder of Avis Linnell, will be decided this week, is the belief of many of those who have closely followed the case.

The fate of the pastor-murderer will hang, to a great extent, on what disposition the Governor's Council shall make of the petition for clemency, presented by Silas X. Phelps, and upon which they will act Wednesday.

If the Council shall decide to commute Phelps's sentence to life imprisonment, such action on their part will foreshadow the granting of a like favor to Mr. Richeson's petition. If it is decided to free Phelps from the death sentence, and send him, instead to a living death in Prison, Massachusetts will have decided, it is believed, its last legal execution.

But if the Council finds no good and sufficient reason for commuting the sentence of the Morse Woolen Mill clerk, it surely be no disposition on their part to commute the sentence of Clarence Richeson, whose crime, in the opinion of the nation, is at least equally black.

Fate Hangs on Council's Act.

It is considered possible that even if the Council shall decide to commute the sentence of Silas Phelps, when the petition of Richeson is presented to them they will refuse to commute his sentence. So that, even though Phelps's life is saved, Richeson may still go to the gallows on May 9.

But if Phelps dies in the chair, Richeson's chances of securing a commutation of his sentence are considered very small.

The Rev. Edgar J. Helms, pastor of Morgan Memorial Church, Shawmut and Corning street, got the confession of Clarence V. T. Richeson.

Concerning the crime for which the young Virginian preacher has been sentenced to be electrocuted, he knows more than any other man save the perpetrator —more even than counsel for defense.

The Rev. Mr. Helms visited Mr. Richeson shortly after his imprisonment in October, and has been making regular visits ever since.

RICHESON CASE LETTERS DEMAND DEATH PENALTY

Women who ask mercy for the Rev. Charles V. T. Richeson are bitterly denounced in a letter in the AMERICAN to-day from Mrs. Marie LeBlanc of Worcester. Mrs. LeBlanc writes:

"Take no notice of such simpletons who send by a roundrel who has ruined and stolen the life of one of their own girls. As Richeson sowed, so let him reap.

Numerous letters are coming in every mail the bulk of them urging Richeson's electrocution.

Writers who favor commutation urge the points that the State has been saved the expense of the trial, that many prospective witnesses have been spared humiliation and that capital punishment is wrong in principle, no matter what the crime.

Some of to-day's letters are as follows:

"His Just Punishment."

Editor AMERICAN:

As a constant reader of your valuable paper I wish you would kindly allow me space for this letter. I have followed up the Richeson case very closely in the AMERICAN and I think the cruelest is his just punishment. What more heinous crime can there be than what has? None. He is a man of maturer years, with good education, good standing and had a salary ample for any man. But he is not satisfied in debauching a pure, beautiful girl; the coward plots, meditates, willfully takes the young life; yes, two lives. Then he lies and pleads innocence and tries to blacken her name. He can, by saying as her pastor he wished to help her.

Did he confess to save the State expense or to vindicate the girl's name? No, he confessed because he knew the evidence the district attorney had against him would lay bare to the public the criminal life he led and make it harder against him. He did not want these things to come out to the public. If life is sweet to him, and he had such a life, why was it not sweet to the pure, young life he took? The world will be well rid of such as he. He can be of no use behind prison walls or anywhere else.

I read where the Carters say he was a nervous wreck. Who wouldn't be nervous if plotting murder? He wanted Violet Edmands' fortune.

Richeson is no more insane than the Governor or attorneys are. He will feign anything to save his neck. Protect our women from such monsters as he. Give such men a lesson what to expect if such a crime is executed. I read in a Worcester paper where some women defends him and denounces Mr. Sawyer of Ware for sanctioning his punishment. Well, sanctioning his punishment. Well, there are always some silly women who seem to stand by a criminal. The worse the crime, the more they admire him.

Take no notice of such simpletons who send by a scoundrel. Let justice be enforced and take the life of one of their own sex.

Madame Schumann-Heink, Who Will File Divorce Plea

MME. ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK

Mme. Schumann-Heink, because of her devotion to her children, has been known as the "Happiest opera singer." Announcement that she will seek a divorce came as a big surprise to her many admirers in Boston.

OPERA STAR TO SUE FOR DIVORCE

Children are God's sunshine.

My children have been my inspiration in life.

I love my children above everything else in the world.

It is that my children might profit by it that I decided to become a great singer, that I might give them the things that had been denied to my own childhood.

No woman can bring up children without a great deal of trouble and suffering, but it is well worth it in the end.

It is this supreme love for her children, which she has long placed before her art and to which she now gives a greater place in her heart than her love for her husband, which has shattered the romance of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, beloved operatic opera is sung and particularly whose are the darlings of Boston people, who have often heard her pure contralto voice.

The news will come as a surprise to all who have followed the career of the noted diva, whose life with her children and husband has been a model. Being in her children and her art, she had won the title of "the happiest opera singer."

There is no bitterness underlying the news Schumann-Heink is about to take, in fact, she says:

"It is on account of my children that divorce seems necessary. My husband and children have been right. He is not to be understood. I should not blame him so harshly.

Mme. Schumann-Heink and her husband, twelve years her junior, have been separated for some time. An estrangement was known to exist, but it was not thought that it had reached a critical stage.

The great contralto, in her apartments at the Planters Hotel, at St. Louis, Monday announced her intention of suing for a divorce. It is said that she would be filed soon, but where she would say.

"I have no word to say against Mr. Heink," said the diva. "He is a gentleman, cultured and refined. But it is best that he should go his way. He has affairs in New York; while I am on the road. My sisters are to my quarrels. It is on account of my children that divorce seems necessary for me. I have no children in the world and love everything else in the world and thus come to a question of choosing between them or his and my career in children.

"He has no children of his own, while I have eight, and some of them are grown. He could not understand. I could not blame him too harshly for it.

"When it came to a question whether I should be my children, or my husband whom I have been married six years clung to my children. And what good person would not? They are my life and I love them with every breath that draws.

"It is my children that have been my inspiration in life. It was their love and ambition to achieve what I have achieved. I have never regretted it, and I never regret it now.

"It is that my children might profit by it that I decided above all things to become a great singer, a great artist, that I might give to them the things that had been denied to my own childhood.

"When I was in my native land my last child came. Then I was married to a poet. It was then that I wanted to quit the stage for good as the world knew me. I felt that I ought to do more work for my children.

Schuman-Heink's last appearances in Boston were in November. Two of her sons accompanied her when she appeared at Symphony Hall, and after the concert her devotion to her sons appeared to all the people present. The young lad had no ears for the praise that was given her voice. She only wanted to talk of her children.

SIX INJURED AS CAR JUMPS RAIL

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 15.—Six persons were injured when a trolley car which left this city for Attleboro to-day left the rails and crashed into a pole at Division's corner at South Attleboro. The car was crowded with high school pupils. The bolting of the car fender in the snow caused the accident.

Stubborn Colds May Lead to Consumption

Did you ever have a cold that would not let go; a cough that persisted, that prevented sleep, and made waking hours miserable? Eckman's Alterative is the proper remedy in such cases. Perhaps some simple medicine may be effective where it is only a tickling in the throat; but when your chest is sore and simple remedies don't answer—then take Eckman's Alterative. Neglect often leads to more serious trouble; a case in point follows:

"Gentlemen: In July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly; had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alterative. In the Fall of 1906 I began to take it. At that time I am certainly well and robust. My appetite is good, my weight has increased from 100 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicine to anyone."

M. L. GERHARDT,
Agent.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Throat and Lung Troubles, Coughs, Colds, Grippe and in whooping cough. It does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Sold by all Kiley-Jaynes Stores, Hamilton & Taylor Drug Dept., and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

PLAN SOUVENIR FOR CARDINAL

The White Star liner Canopic, on which Cardinal O'Connell is to return to Boston, has sailed from Gibraltar, according to messages received at the local offices of the White Star line in Boston to-day. A week ago it was announced that the sailing would be cancelled unless the long shoremen's strike were settled. The Canopic left Genoa, Italy, yesterday, and tomorrow reaches Naples, where Cardinal O'Connell and his party will embark.

The Canopic is due to reach Boston January 28. It was said today there was a possibility the liner would be diverted from Boston should the strike become more serious than it is at present. The steamship touches the Azores January 23. The Boston officials of the White Star line declared to-day the liner would be ordered to that point if they deem it necessary to have the ship dock in New York.

Souvenir for Cardinal.

At the banquet to be tendered the Cardinal by the laymen of the diocese on Wednesday evening, February 7, a unique and beautiful album containing an address from the laity, with the names of the subscribers, will be presented to the Cardinal, and because of this souvenir it is probable that the subscription list will have to be closed up within a comparatively short time. At a meeting of the committee on souvenir the preliminary work toward this part of the evening's business were speed up and the plan put into definite shape.

The committee decided that each guest of the laymen to attend the banquet will also receive a souvenir, which, in a modified scale, will be a duplicate of the one that is to be presented to the Cardinal. It is expected that the souvenir and the menu of the dinner will attend this function at the Somerset as a representative of the entire diocese.

The banquet at the Somerset will precede the presentation to the cardinal and the committee expects the attendance of many church dignitaries and those high in State and municipal affairs.

Rare Work of Art.

The address of congratulation will be a gem of hand illuminated manuscript on genuine vellum, something in the style of those beautiful specimens of the mediaeval work of the middle ages that are among the rare gems of the Bibliothe. The whole will be bound by a silk ribbon into a red Levant cover, inscribed with cardinal silk, the cover ornamented with the coat of arms of Cardinal O'Connell chased in silver. The album will be contained in a mahogany case lined with white silk, the case being an inscribed plate.

FIVE KILLED IN CRASH OF TRAINS

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Jan. 15.—Five persons were killed and many others were injured in a collision of passenger trains today on the cross-over in this city of the New York Central and P. & L. E. railroads.

The dead: James Gannon, P. & O. engineer, of Pittsburg; Frank Cunningham, B. & O. fireman, of Newcastle; J. L. Craft, B. & O. baggage master of Cleveland; Robert Clark, Pittsburg & Lake Erie engineer, of Mckees Rocks; James Smith, Pittsburg & Lake Erie fireman, of Newcastle.

TWENTY-SEVEN LOST IN ICE IN GERMANY

TIPS TO GIRLS ON PROPOSING

This is Leap Year. Girls are allowed to "pop the question" that makes two hearts beat as one.

The AMERICAN wants to help the girls. They may have some young man who keeps his feet warm at her parlor stove night after night. He would like to get married. He's afraid to propose. Perhaps the money matter is in the way. Here is where the AMERICAN comes in. This paper offers $25 to the first girl who proposes, gets accepted and marries. The contest is on, girls. Pop the question.

This is really the year of all years for the girls. The young men realize what Leap Year means. Everybody does. The AMERICAN does. But—yes, there's the rub. Have the girls got the courage? You bet they have. The AMERICAN knows it, too, and is anxiously waiting for some of them to assert themselves.

The young men are willing, girls. Just are the question at them. Just say to your friend: "George, will you marry me?" Ten to one he'll say, "Yes, sweetness, I'm yours. Let's get the AMERICAN $25."

That's all you have to do, girls. So there.

Really; Mutt Is Taking Advantage of Jeff's Slow Think Tank By "Bud" Fisher

JEFF, I'LL BET YOU $10 YOU CAN'T TAKE A BOX OF POKER DICE AND SHAKE OUT A 'ONE' A 'DEUCE' A 'THREE' A 'FOUR' A 'FIVE' AND A 'SIX' IN AN HOUR. YOU CAN'T SHAKE AS OFTEN AS I'LL LIKE
YOU'RE ON! THAT'S A RIPE
THERE'S AN ACE AND DEUCE ALREADY
ALL RIGHT, LET THE ACE AND DEUCE ABIDE AND SHAKE FOR THE OTHERS
THIS IS SOFT! THERE'S A 'THREE' AND A 'FOUR' RIGHT THERE
ALL RIGHT! LAY THE 'THREE' AND 'FOUR' ASIDE AND SHAKE FOR THE 'FIVE' AND 'SIX'
CINCH! THERE'S YOUR FIVE ONE - TWO - THREE FOUR - FIVE! GIMME THE COIN
YES, BUT WHERE'S THE 'SIX'
WELL, THERE'S NO MORE DICE, HOW CAN I SHAKE A SIX
YES HE'S
WELL, THAT'S THE FUNNY PART OF IT

BUSINESS MEN HAIL COMING OF GRAND TRUNK ROAD TO BOSTON

SEE BIG STEP IN DEVELOPMENT OF BOSTON'S TRADE BY LATEST MOVE.

sentative Holbrook of Palmer, will send it to the joint legislative committee on rules, which will order its advertisement for three successive weeks. If this committee then recommends its admission to the Speaker, he will refer it to the joint committee on railroads.

It is known the legislators will move that these rules be suspended and the petition and the legislation asked for taken up at once.

At the special meeting of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange a resolution was introduced urging the State Legislature to use all possible expedition in the consideration of the Grand Trunk petition.

The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the Greater Boston situation and the mayors of all the cities in the metropolitan district were present. They added their voices to that of the Real Estate Exchange in urging the coming of the Grand Trunk.

President John J. Martin of the Exchange in a statement for the AMERICAN said:

"All our commercial bodies should exert every nerve to have this permission granted so that the Grand Trunk can begin building as soon as possible. For that reason I had a resolution urging the Legislature to make haste offered at the Real Estate Exchange meeting this afternoon."

David J. McDonald of the Boston City Council said this afternoon: "I am proud to father these resolutions. I introduced in the Council, because I think the way of the Grand Trunk will be a great thing for Boston, both from the standpoint of the laboring man and from the standpoint of the business interests. With development of the harbor and the improvement of the dock facilities, it appears that Boston is on the eve of a great commercial revival and there should be no doubt of what the legislative action should be on the petition."

Councillor Walter Ballantyne said:

"Of course I favor these resolutions and will be glad to vote for them at next Monday's meeting. Now that the railroad is taken definite steps to come to Boston, we should be consistent and follow up our initial invitation for them to locate here by making it as convenient as possible for them to secure their location. My congratulations to the AMERICAN on the successful outcome of its splendid fight."

Congressman James Curley wired from Washington: "As sponsor for the original resolution inviting the Grand Trunk to come to Boston, I naturally favor any resolution that will tend to speed the very good work for the AMERICAN. Accept my felicitations."

Councillor Timothy J. Buckley said: "I am with the resolution and no doubt every member of the council is. Everybody who has the welfare of the city of Boston at heart must be delighted at the prospect of another big road entering the city. The action of the AMERICAN certainly will get great credit for its successful campaign."

Asks Use of North Station.

The Grand Trunk asks that it may use the North Station in Boston as a terminal, and that it may connect with the Boston Maine and use such parts of that road as necessary.

The Grand Trunk also asks that it may use the lines of the Grand Junction Railway and the Union Freight Railroad and the East Boston Marginal Railroad—all being companies carrying freight to the docks. The route proposed by the Grand Trunk's line in Massachusetts asks for locations in the towns of Dunstable, Tyngsborough, Westford, Chelmsford, Tewksbury, Billerica, Carlisle, Wilmington, Bedford, Burlington, Lincoln, Lexington, Winchester, Arlington, Belmont and Watertown, all in the cities of Lowell, Woburn, Medford, Somerville, Cambridge, Malden, Newton and Everett, or in any of those cities and towns, and in Brookline, Revere, Chelsea and Boston or any of them.

Vice-President Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk, who is president of the Southern New England Railroad Company, which will be the corporate name for the Grand Trunk in Massachusetts, will arrive in Boston to-morrow to take charge of the work. Consultations will be held with the railroad commissioners, and there will be laid before them the plans of the engineers and surveyors through Middlesex County, from the New Hampshire State line and from Blackstone, Mass., through Worcester to Boston.

The directors of the port of Boston will provide suitable terminal sites and facilities for the Grand Trunk.

To Operate Steamships.

The Grand Trunk in its petition to the Legislature also prays that it may be allowed to own and operate steamships, which in itself is an indication of the extent to which the railway hopes its trade in New England will develop.

On April 27 last year the Massachusetts House of Representatives passed the following resolution inviting the Grand Trunk to the port of Boston:

Whereas, the entry of the Grand Trunk Railway system as the port of Boston would be greatly to the commercial advantage of Massachusetts; therefore be it

Ordered, that we, the Massachusetts House of Representatives, do hereby join in inviting the Grand Trunk Railway system to extend its lines to Boston, and that copies of this order be forwarded to the directors of said railway system.

The Grand Trunk petition filed Saturday outlines that the Southern New England Railroad (Massachusetts corporate name for the Grand Trunk) will construct a point in Middlesex County with a new incorporated organization to be formed in New Hampshire and Vermont. It provides further that it pass through or near the following towns and cities to Boston:

Dunstable, Tyngsboro, Westford, Chelmsford, Tewksbury, Carlisle, Wilmington, Bedford, Burlington, Lincoln, Lexington, Arlington, Belmont, Watertown, Winchester, Medford, Somerville, Cambridge, Malden, Everett, Melrose, Woburn, Medford, Somerville, Cambridge, Malden, Newton, Everett, Brookline, Revere, Chelsea and Boston.

May Use North Terminal.

It provides that the Southern New England Railroad have the right of entrance into the North Terminal station and a right to connect with the Boston & Maine Railroad, using such portions of the Boston & Maine Railroad as is necessary for entrance.

The extent and terms of the use of the Boston & Maine tracks are to be decided by the railroad commissioners upon petition and after a hearing, if the two railroads cannot agree. The Southern New England Railroad, which is the Grand Trunk, is to have the right to use the Grand Junction Railroad and Depot Company's tracks, the Union Freight Railroad Company's tracks, and the East Boston Marginal Freight Railroad tracks, as may be agreed upon between the Southern New England and these railroads, or if they cannot agree, as the railroad commissioners may decide. Other features of the petition are:

The Southern New England Railroad Company to have the right to lay out, relocate and construct a line from the town of Douglas, through intervening towns to Worcester. The Southern New England Railroad to lay out, relocate and construct a line from Blackstone in Worcester county, through Wrentham and other towns to Boston.

The Southern New England Railroad to have the right of eminent domain for the acquisition of a right of way five rods in width, and such other lands as may be necessary for its construction, etc.

When the directors have determined definitely upon the route, they shall file a copy of their plans with the county commissioners of each county through which the railroad is to run, and also with the railroad commissioners.

The company is capitalized at $10,000,000, and may issue stock and bonds as necessary.

City Council Thanks American.

The following resolution will be offered at the meeting of the City Council next Monday by Councillor Daniel J. McDonald, who is secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council:

Whereas, The Grand Trunk Railroad has petitioned for the right to enter the port of Boston;

Whereas, the entrance of this railroad will mark a distinct step in the commercial development of the city; and

Whereas, the establishment of this new route to the West will mean the employment for thousands of citizens of this city;

Therefore be it resolved, that we, the City Council of Boston, in meeting assembled, extend our thanks to the Boston AMERICAN for its successful efforts in moulding public interest to the importance of bringing another railroad to Boston and its persistent fight to accomplish this end;

Be it further resolved, that we urge the general court of Massachusetts to expedite the introduction of the Grand Trunk Railroad to Boston by favorable action on the company's petition as speedily as the public welfare will permit.

The winning of the fight to bring the Grand Trunk Railway to Boston to-day brought widespread commendation on the part the AMERICAN played in the victory.

Judge Thomas W. Kenefick of Palmer, who is in Boston in connection with the filing of the petition, said to a representative of the AMERICAN:

"Your paper will certainly be justified in taking a great deal of credit for this result of a long publicity fight. It was the AMERICAN which paved the way for this announcement."

All of which was cordially indorsed by General Assistant Warman of the Grand Trunk, who is also at the Toursine. He moreover, reminded the AMERICAN representative of the letter sent to this newspaper by President Hays last Summer announcing the arrival of petitions signed by nearly 100,000 readers.

East Boston is mentioned as a likely site for a great Grand Trunk Terminal.

General Hugh Bancroft, chairman of the port directors, said to-day the board was as much in support of the move that it would take land by eminent domain if need be.

The Governor, the Mayor, and the Chamber of Commerce have all signified their enthusiastic support of the Grand Trunk petition, their statements General Bancroft added:

"Of course, the business of the Grand Trunk Railroad in Boston at first will consist mainly of freight. It is absolutely essential that the road have, therefore, access to Boston. He favored East Boston as a site for the terminal.

Bernard J. Rothwell of the Chamber of Commerce said:

"Boston is recognized the world over as a great seaport, with a harbor which for safe entrance and security is already capable of accommodating the largest ships yet afloat or designed. Such a city and such a port, backed, as it is, by financial resources greater in proportion than those of any city in the United States, must prove a powerful magnet to such far-seeing transportation magnates as President Hays and his associates of the Grand Trunk system."

City Council Resolution Thanks American for Grand Trunk Work

The following resolution will be offered at the meeting of the City Council next Monday by Councillor Daniel J. McDonald, who is secretary of the Allied Printing Trades' Council:

Whereas, The Grand Trunk Railroad has petitioned for the right to enter the port of Boston.

Whereas, The entrance of this railroad will mark a distinct step in the commercial development of the city; and

Whereas, The establishment of this new route to the West will mean the employment for thousands of citizens of this city; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the City Council of Boston, in meeting assembled, extend our thanks to the Boston American for its successful efforts in moulding public interest to the importance of bringing another railroad to Boston and its persistent fight to accomplish this end; be it further

Resolved, That we urge the General Court of Massachusetts to expedite the introduction of the Grand Trunk Railroad to Boston by favorable action on the company's petition as speedily as the public welfare will permit.

DIABETES MELLITUS

Patient—Joseph Allen, Manufacturer, Collingwood, New Jersey.

Cure—Diabetes Mellitus.

Diagnosis—By four physicians. Said the patient could not recover.

Condition—Extreme, weight reduced from 210 to 150 lbs. Could hardly think, sleep or talk. Could not attend to business. The physicians were giving opiates to keep patient comfortable until the end came.

The recovery of a wealthy lady in Philadelphia who was also in the last stages of the disease caused the treatment to be designed.

A fine recovery resulted. This was all five years ago. As showing the permanence of the results obtained Allen is still well and attending to his manufacturing business at this writing (1913).

The agent employed in both cases was Fulton's Diabetic Compound.

Diabetes is now a curable disease in people of middle age and over who have exonerating power.

The Compound can be had in your city at Riker-Jones drug stores.

We will mail literature from this office and desire to advise with every one not drinking. Start letters with the age. John J. Fulton Co., 645 Battery St., San Francisco.

SILK HAT HARRY IS THE TALK OF NEW ENGLAND. IT IS A REGULAR FEATURE OF THE SUNDAY AMERICAN.

American's Big Bowling Contest Wins Wide Praise

All bowldom in New England is talking of little else to-day than the Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest. In all the alleys and clubs the experts of the candlepins are trying to dope out the coming champion, which honor is receiving that honor will receive the $100 the AMERICAN offers the winner.

It is for all bowlers to remember that there is a lot of other prizes outside of the main one to be announced later by the AMERICAN; that entrance is free to any bowler residing in New England, and entries close on January 28.

New England is strictly the home of the candlepin bowling sport. There has been a big question regarding who of the thousands devoted to the game is the champion. In all other sports there stands out one carrying the title of champion. The AMERICAN has now come forward with this contest to establish the title holder in candlepins.

Many Favorites in Game.

Long enough has the discussion waged that John Christopher is premier, that Paul Pechler is top of the heap, that Archie Walsh is the king, that Bill Galway leads the way, that Bill Beatty is still the master of them all, and so on through the list extending to the many sections of New England, having their favorite bowler.

It is well recognized that in no game is the element of luck so big as in candlepins. Of course, the real crackajack bowler of the thin pins can always clean up during a bad breaks than can the ordinary one. But when it comes to strings wherein the star is getting bad breaks all through, and the ordinary person is having the luck in spare leaves and strikes, the latter is obliged to pile up the most pins on that occasion.

It is this element of luck in bowling more than in mind when entering the Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest. Any, at all adept in bowling, cannot hesitate in making their entries. The contest is bound to furnish some big surprises. The "dark horses" will be right in their element and are already changing their bits to do the work next Monday, the opening day of the big contest.

Bowlers Use Home Alleys.

In the present week bowlers will be notified through the columns of the AMERICAN the names of the alleys in Boston and vicinity, as well as alleys in other New England cities, over which the preliminary strings are to be rolled.

The preliminary or qualifying round consists of five strings, and each contestant must furnish by mail after bowling, his score, certified to by the proprietor of the alley and two reputable citizens, who must have witnessed the bowling trial.

In all contests, whether bowling for qualifying or elimination round, or finals, the highest pinfall will win. In the finals will be rolled twenty strings to decide the winner and champion, the strings on each night. In the qualifying and elimination as well as the semi-finals, five strings is the limit to be rolled.

Of the many letters commending the action of the AMERICAN in offering the bowling championship contest the following few are published in showing the great interest instantly aroused by close followers of the sport:

Bowling Editor, Boston American:

You have surely hit the nail right on the head in coming up from with the grand bowling contest. I note the announcement of the Boston AMERICAN. You can rest assured that the interest in the candlepin game in New England will more than double after the contest is rolled. Very truly yours, J. C. L. SHEAFE. Boylston Alleys.

Bowling Editor, Boston American:

Of all the good things the AMERICAN has given to the New England public the Bowling Championship Contest, is my opinion, is the leader. It cannot fail in giving the popular sport a tremendous boom. Regardless of the contest are very liberal, and should be taken advantage of. You can, rest assured that the interest in the candlepin game in New England will more than double after the contest is rolled. The conditions are very liberal, and the prizes well worth fighting for. May the best bowler win, and I wish to thank the AMERICAN for its enterprise and promotion of the bowling game.

Very truly yours, J. C. L. SHEAFE.
Boylston Alleys.

Bowling Editor, Boston American:

Now bowlers bear in mind to fill out the blank printed in another column, and send it to the Boston AMERICAN Bowling Editor. Also remember that entries close January 28. The contest starts next Monday, and all living outside of Greater Boston can bowl on alleys to be selected in the following cities and towns:

Maine—Portland and Bangor.
New Hampshire—Manchester, Dover and Lancaster.
Vermont—Burlington, Barre and Brattleboro.
Massachusetts—Holyoke, North Adams, Springfield, Pittsfield, Worcester, Fitchburg, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Lynn, Gloucester, Newburyport, Framingham, New Bedford, Brockton, Fall River, Taunton, and Middleboro.
Rhode Island—Providence, Woonsocket and Pawtucket.
Connecticut—Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven and New London.

Referees and other officials will be appointed for the eliminations and finals.

The finals will be bowled on Boston alleys.

No player can receive more than one prize.

Rules Governing the Contest.

The following rules have been adopted with reference to alley work:

Deadwood to remain on the alley, except all pins lying on the gutter ledges to and in the gutter of the alley, also all pins any part of which is more than two feet from the floor of the alley. Such pins shall be drawn two feet in front of head pin spot, and all pins outside of said line shall be removed from the alley.

No ball more than 4½ inches in diameter can be used in games.

Each bowler may bowl for his own bowling in every game.

No ball shall be rolled while deadwood is rolling, under penalty of foul. (If deadwood apparently hovering the gutter or the sides of the alley, the referee may, if he deems it necessary for the proper conduct of the contest, and gives notice that his decision on any question pertaining to the contest will be final and absolute.

Watch the AMERICAN'S sporting pages for the entries and records of the Bowling Championship Contest. The facts and strategy of the contest will be told day to day. If there is anything you want to be informed about, write to the Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

B. A. A. OUT FOR CLEAN SWEEP

The interesting stretch in the Amateur Boston Pin League will begin to-night with all six teams in competition. Both the Colonial and Arlington Boat Clubs seem to have regained their old-time form and should make the race a close one for the B. A. A. and Newtowne teams.

While Newtowne has shown signs of distress since vacating the first position the followers of the North Cambridge team are confident that the men will get going at their usual pace to-night. Dolly is not so far behind the other teams and must be counted upon as a contender for the league honors.

The Dalton rollers of Newburyport are hopelessly lost. The team has been in position and so far behind that it is an almost impossibility for them to get out of the tail-end hoos.

The B. A. A. rollers will have for an opponent the Dudley team of Roxbury on its home alleys, and should be the winner of the match. A week ago Dudley lost three points on its home alleys but not until it had given the Exeter street men an exciting battle. Dudley is always capable of giving a good account of itself and will undoubtedly be heard from in to-night's matches.

Newtowne Is Confident.

The Arlington Boat Club can be counted upon as winner of its match with Newtowne to-night unless the Cambridge men show better form. The boatmen made a wonderful showing a week ago against this same team away from home, tailing on all four points and can be doubly relied upon to give a better account of themselves on their home alleys.

Newtowne has a total of points behind B. A. A. and with Colonial and Arlington but two points behind them the Cambridge men are in no position to lose this contest. The team is confident that it will brace to-night and give a better account of itself.

Colonial has the best chance of the season to move both Newtowne and the Arlington Boat Club in the advent of the latter two teams splitting even, as the Dorchester team should take all four points from Dalton on its home alleys.

Newspaper League Busy.

The Newspaper League rollers will be a busy bunch this afternoon with five matches on hand, at the Adams Square alleys. The best match will be contested between the Transcript second team, which is leading the league, and the Post. Unless the Post quartet shows some unexpected form the leaders should have little trouble in adding to the lead they have. The Post team is in fourth position and can only move up to that of a tie for second with the Transcript.

The Transcript first should have very little trouble in taking all four points from the Herald, while the Herald should be returned the winner over the Globe by a safe margin. Record and Globe are picking for the first team of the Globe.

The Globe has been going fast this year but it has displayed during the past few weeks the form it must have to be a contender for the title. Mickey McKee has proved a valuable addition to the last two matches and is sure to be there in breaking up things this afternoon.

Notes of the Alleys

Marty O'Toole, dubbed the $22,500 wonder of the baseball world, is quite an enthusiastic bowling fan. According to eye witnesses Marty rolls a string or two on the Lenox alleys, not for very long, as he is a constant visitor of the bowling alleys in South Framingham.

Fred Hale, the youngest roller of the Second Cod quintet, aggregation, leaders of the Leather League, is a youngster that never loses his nerve. He continues to hit the pins over the 90 mark.

Fred Hartford is confident that the Old Colony specials will be returned the winners in their match with the Acme A. A. alleys to-night. It has been rumored that Fred is backing his team heavily against the Jamaica Plain organization.

When it comes to picking off the single pins very few rollers have anything on "Tommy Bell" Hughes of the Harvard team. Upham looks it over for quite a while, but rarely always comes down with the next ball.

Frank Nichols and Otto Hanson of the Malonies are out to get a personal grudge as to their bowling abilities. Both men are agreed to roll a string at the Old Colony alleys next Thursday night.

It has been whispered around the bowling circles that Harry Fuller is going back again. His exhibition last week in Boston's big tourney was the talk, but Harry was there with the "Did you notice that?"

Wenfzell and Dolan of the Oriental and Somerville teams in the A. O. U. W. League are tied for the first place among the individual rollers of that league, with an average of 104. Cota of Vulcan is tailed, with an even hundred.

The pace in the Boston & Maine League must have been too much for the Warren Bridge second team. After making a great fight, jumping from last to second place the team has dropped back into fourth position again.

Eddie Keevin, matchmaker and promoter of the American A. C., was arraigned in the Municipal Court to-day, charged with promoting boxing. Keevin pleaded "not guilty" and the case was continued until January 19. Keevin is now out on $500 bail. The West End promoter said to-day:

"There is no reason why the American A. C. should not be permitted to promote boxing. I am sure that the Court will see matters this way when my case is brought to trial. My club has been conducted as well as any similar organization in the East.

"The bouts have not exceeded eight rounds in duration and no decisions have been given. By putting decisions I aim to keep the gamblers away from my club.

"In an effort to promote boxing, scientific boxing I have barred all boxers who use their fists to give punches. Both of these blows are unfair and have worked havoc with boxing in different parts of the country.

"I have only admitted members to the bouts and they have all conducted themselves in a becoming manner while the bouts have been in progress."

CUCKOO SPECIALS IN BIG BOWLING MATCH

One of the most interesting bowling matches of the season will be held to-night when the Congress Specials and Cuckoo Specials meet in a special match at the Congress Alleys, Lowell, for a side bet of $50. Suburban league fans are expected in force to witness the match, as both teams are composed entirely of rollers of that league. "Bill" Hulme, formerly of the Boylston team, will lead the Congress Specials and with Douglass and three other Lowell Trade League rollers should be able to give the Cuckoo "champs" a stiff battle. Sonny Green, Willie Gregg, Frank Graves and Finlay will make up the Cuckoos.

GILLISPIE MATCHED TO ROLL HARTFORD

Some clever bowling should be seen to-night at the Oriental alleys in Somerville, when Gillispie of the Boylston alleys meets "Bob" Hartford and "Bob" Gillispie have been getting up in the 90's of late. These two bowlers are among the cleverest of the Old Colony league and should be a treat to the Old Colony alleys next Thursday night.

WELLS NOT COMING HERE THIS YEAR

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Bombardier Wells, the English heavy, has cancelled his steamer passage for America and will not go there until next season. The fact that Jack Johnson is signed up for a mill with Jim Flynn precluded the Englishman from a fight with the champion, causing him to postpone his trip to America.

GOODMAN SIGNS TO FIGHT YOUNG ERNE

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The National Sporting Club has signed up Jack Goodman for a ten-round fight here on February 1 with Young Erne of Philadelphia.

DARTMOUTH TO PLAY COLUMBIA

Dartmouth and Columbia will battle in hockey at the Boston Arena to-night. The contest is in the Intercollegiate Hockey League.

Columbia is picked to win. The New York seven has shown good form this season and is confident of victory.

The Dartmouth team has been coming fast during the past few days. In the opening game of its league season it was agained Princeton, the Tigers won by a score of 3 to 0. The Green players had had little practice in preparation for the game and were swept off their feet by the fierce onslaught of the team from Bridgeton.

Since its overwhelming defeat at the hands of the Adams Square (to-night) team has been pushed hard by its coaches. The men have been working out every afternoon on the rink at Hanover. The mild weather has made the ice of the best at Hanover.

The development of the seven was greatly retarded this season by the mild weather during December. The ice failed to form on the different lakes and ponds and as a result the seven failed to get going at a fast clip as early as in past seasons.

The Dartmouth student body is confident that the Green will be heard from on the ice before the hockey campaign comes to a close. Captain Ramsey is a good man in the lineup who may always be depended upon to play good hockey.

This year's Dartmouth team is captained by Carl Ahlstrom. The Dartmouth leader learned the Canadian game as a member of the Newton High seven. Ahlstrom, the former Arlington High star, will also be seen in the lineup.

Coach Hogan will be able to devote a great deal of his time to the coaching of the team from now on. Hogan has been forced to leave his business affairs besides coaching the hockey team during the past few weeks.

ADVERTISING MEN IN BIG GOLF TOURNEY

Advertising men of the United States will hold their annual golf tournament at Pinehurst, N. C., this week, which will continue through Saturday. Eighty-three golfers have been entered for competition, which represent about $3,000, and it is expected a record entry will be made. The men's events will comprise the general tournament, four-ball foursomes, andfoursome, four-ball foursomes, mixed foursomes, ladies' day and putting contests. John Wanamaker of New York has offered a silver cup, to be competed for annually, with conditions for playing that make it almost a perpetual prize.

Do You Skate?

If you do, or if you don't, you will wish to be on hand when the grand free Carnival on Lake Quinsigamond at the AMERICAN start on the Charles River Basin next Saturday. Read all about the Carnival in TO-DAY'S AMERICAN.

Basketball Notes

Manager Frank Hutchins of the Bennett A. A. five of Somerville is anxious to arrange dates with basketball quintets and teams in the State at or away from home. The lineup includes Chollett, Connolly, the former Dorchester High star; Mahday and Redgate, formerly of the St. Francis de Chantal team; Bewsky, of the Brattan five of Milton, and Tom Grieves. Games are wanted with any team in or near Boston, Attleboro, Gloucester, Gloversville, Fitchburg, Holy Cross, Lowell, the Boston Company K of Hingham, Maynard and Fall River. Address Frank Hutchins, No. 161 Glen street, Somerville.

It was partly through the great shooting of Jim Duggan, fight lumber, across Quincy A. A. team, that enabled his quintet to score the five point victory over the St. Joseph's. He scored four goals from the floor, which is some shooting for a back.

Followers of the Philadelphia Athletics will be sorry to hear that "Stuffy" McInnis is nursing a sprained ankle as a basketball player. The crack first baseman turned his ankle on the ice and laid off form the other night and missed many games. Stuffy is one of the best all-round athletes in the game.

After piling up the best record of the season by winning from Lynn by a score the Boylston Five proved an easy victim for the Lowell Textiles at the Lowell Y. M. C. A. the other night. Manager Johnson's boys put up a poor game but were not in it with the Newton lads.

Jim Dowd is one of the best forwards in the State at the present time. Jim plays on the Somerville Boys' Club, a quintet which is making it hard going for the 105-pound basketball boys.

When you look at the record of the Crescents of New Jersey, leaders in the Massachusetts Valley League, there is many faster teams in New England. The team lost to Amesbury and won from Gloucester by one point.

The McCormick Five of Roxbury would like to meet any 115-pound team in the State. Fitton A. C. of East Boston, Columbian of South Boston and Company K of Hingham preferred. Games at home or away Tuesdays, away Friday and Saturday. Manager Jimmy Hanley, No. 5 Sumner place, Roxbury.

By JACK CONWAY.

"Gunboat" Everett Eldridge, a good boxer, a terrific puncher and as game as they make 'em, is going to have a chance when boxers of the Eldridge type hit the trail they usually bag some big game.

The Somerset favorite has not been in the ring for several months. His last appearance in the squared circle was at the Armory A. A. early last Fall in a semi-final bout. His opponent was Joe Nelson and the Lawrence battler won in seven rounds after one of the most sensational battles ever witnessed at the Tremont street club.

Eldridge broke one of his hands a few days before the bout and refused to have knitted rapidly. He enforced layoff made his friends on Eldridge's bank account and before his hand was well he agreed to meet Nelson at the Armory club because he needed the money.

Several days before the match, Eldridge hurt his "bum" hand while training and was forced to undergo an operation. His physician advised him not to fight for two months at least.

He Went On and Fought.

Sergeant Murphy's battler turned a deaf ear to the advice of the physician and went on with Nelson. Before the bout there were few people who knew of Eldridge's condition. The writer was one of the few. They gathered around the ringside who had been informed that one of Eldridge's hands never broke.

Nelson outweighed Eldridge by about thirty pounds and towered over him in height. The Lawrence fighter was in the pink of condition and confident of a quick win. The battling fraternity were of the opinion that Joe should win in a walk.

But such is not the case. Eldridge gamely received when the gong clanged at the beginning of the first round. Eldridge left his corner like an enraged tiger and seat Nelson to the mat with a terrific blow to the jaw.

The "human punching bag" regained his feet in a few seconds. From that point until the end Eldridge threw up only a sponge in the seventh round, because the pain from his broken hand was too great to endure. Eldridge gave Nelson some terrific punishment, sending him to the ropes time and again. On several occasions he had Nelson all but out. He was only able to use one hand, the greater part of the battle. He used his injured member on the defense.

Eldridge would now like to get a date with Nelson or any one with any man who can make 142 pounds in the future. Eldridge is a member of the 142-pound class and has been unable to get any matches. Eldridge would be sure and give Powers a great battle at 142 pounds for he packs the wallop which brings some big bouts.

Mr. Valentine Braun, better known as Knockout Brown, will have to fight better than he has in the past if he is to defeat Abe Attell Thursday night in Fall River. The Boston boy will encounter the featherweight champion by about eight pounds. Eldridge would be sure and a lucky individual if he gets an even break. Attell is the cleverest man in the ring today and is able to hold his own with those who outweigh him by over ten pounds. Brown will use his hands a bewilderess personified. His adherents, however, believe that when he has a solid punch Attell will advance with a great deal more caution. The bout is sure to draw a big house.

"Irish Paddy" Callahan is now at his home in Brooklyn and is doing light training in preparation for his bout with Willie Jones, which takes place on Saturday night in the New Pebble in the Providence fashion. Callahan has met Jones on several occasions to date. He won the first affair by a knockout in the first round, while he outboxed Jones over the second meeting. Jones has quite a reputation around New [illegible] and has fought Abe Attell twice.

Eddie Murphy, "South Boston lightweight, now in [illegible] says may be matched to meet Willie [illegible] in the near future. This pair of real lightweights will probably get together at Cleveland. Ritchie first gained prominence in the ring when he substituted for Ad Wolgast and fought Freddy Welsh at Vernon on Thanksgiving Day. Although Ritchie lost the decision to the former English lightweight champion, he won a host of followers by his great work.

Kid Sealer has been signed to meet Billy Allen, the Canadian lightweight champion, at the Western Gateway Athletic Club of North Adams, on February 6. Sealer has done some fine work in the ring since he came East from Spokane. He is now ranked among the leading men of his weight in New England.

Young McDonough of Manchester, N. H., and Billy Quhlan of Danvers, should furnish some fireworks when they clash at Lawrence Thursday night.

The City and the Rube

By WINIFRED BLACK

"HOW in the world do you manage to live so far from Broadway?" said the good detective to the re formed Get Rich Quick Man in the play.

"Oh," said the Get Rich Quick Man "wait and see."

Such wondrous things he sees—dress-coats, automobiles, valets, butlers and old men of eighty-odd, going to make a night of it at the club after a wedding supper. "I see," says the detective, "Broadway hasn't got much on you Rubes after all.

And the whole theatre full of Rubes who were seeing the play sat and laughed and laughed so hard they nearly forgot to applaud. I wonder why?

Automobiles, valets, footmen, butlers, a night at the club—what a glorious ambition to know all these marvellous things, to drink them in with your mother's milk, even in you have to roost in a flat and go in debt to your tailor to do it.

Get rich, get rich, get rich!

Don't live in a home; live in a cave.

Don't have a friend; have a waiter.

Don't have children; have butlers.

Don't have a wife for a sweetheart.

Why, the idea of doing such a "Rube" thing as that when there's a whole street full of show girls just waiting for you.

Choose a good girl and marry her as soon she'll let you find your happiness in her sweet eyes, your comfort in her simple faith, your wish to live because she lives, and you can make her happy! Tut-tut. You'll never get very far with any such idea as that.

And yet there are people who take that view of life, millions of them right in this very country of ours, and, whisper, they look happier when you look right at them than these wise folks who are so much "in the know," as they'd call it, it seems to me.

Good morning, Mr. Country Cousin. Just in from Cleveland, are you? What, you find the rooms small here in the city, and the houses are ugly and not comfortable in any way?

Keep It Dark

Lonesome, here in the city? Why, the idea.

The town is full of waiters and taxi drivers and hat check men. They'll all be mighty pleasant to you if you only treat them right, but for goodness sake don't let them know you come from a place where you have a front porch all to yourself, and three bathrooms, and a lot of real friends, and a library full of real books, and room enough to keep them, too, or they'd know you're just a "Rube" and laugh at you, and that would be a fearful thing.

Yes, yes, I know your kind. You're in love with your own wife, actually in love with her. You work together hand in hand you two. Poor to-day may be, but what hopes for to-morrow. Bad times now, but never mind; think what's ahead of you. What's the difference if the road you walk is a little rough in places. You're together, you and the woman you love, together all the way.

What's that ahead in the turn there, a bogie man, sickness, poverty, discouragement? Pooh, pooh! Sing the bogie out of existence. Why, what a sweet, clear voice she has, the little woman who walks with you.

Whew, that was a breather that hill. She'll be tired to death. What, not even panting, the little woman who seemed so delicate when you chose her out of all the world to be your companion down the long road? She's laughing at you for being tired. She's as fresh as paint herself.

On, on again. Now the road is smooth for a while. What a charming bit of shade. Who are these coming to meet you down the sun-flecked shadow? Little fellows they are.

See the one ahead there—his mother's very eyes.

Behind him comes his sister. Why, she's the image of your own mother. See that smile? She carries her head exactly as you do. The little woman has stopped to kiss her. She has to do that every time she sees how like she is.

Who is the red-cheeked nuisance in the boots? Your own father alive again if ever a man stepped in his grandchild's shoes.

How many friends there are along the way. There's the fellow you helped when he was down and out. Doing well now, is he? That's good.

How his face lights up when he sees you.

See, there's the poor girl the Little Woman stood by when she was in trouble. She'd die to serve either of you now.

Always Together

What a company you are by now, you and the Little Woman and the little fellows, and your friends and the Little Woman's friends, and the little fellow's friends, all travelling together, singing sometimes, laughing sometimes, crying a little, too, sometimes. It's a long road you travel, and there are bad places in it, but together, all together, all the way.

Growing old; nonsense. You just hint that the Little Woman isn't the prettiest woman in the world to little Boots there, and see his fat fist double up of its own accord.

You commonplace, a little dull? Just let any one say that about you to Blue Eyes and hear what she'll answer them.

Together, together, in sun and rain, together, together, in tempest and in peace, always together, warm hearts and true, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health.

What, not a show girl among you, not a single affinity? Don't even mention such words in such company as this.

Not a butler; never heard of a valet; couldn't mix an up-to-date cocktail to save your life? Wouldn't dream of making a night of it at any club? Never saved money enough for an automobile?

Stay away from the White Lights, Mr. Rube, you and your family and your friends. They wouldn't know what to make of you there.

But while you're in town, Brother Rube, go to the theatre and see one of those foolish, foolish plays about the Boobs and the Rubes.

It will make you laugh, not at the Rubes, not even at the Boobs, but at the funny, funny people who laugh at them.

"Broadway hasn't got much on you Rubes, after all," said the detective in the play. I wonder if the clever man who wrote those lines has the faintest idea how true, how gloriously true they are.

Hammerstein Caustic

OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN 2d's occasion develops a snappy sarcasm quite Gilbertian in its favor.

When producing an opera in New York, he was annoyed at the incompetency of the chorus.

He approached one young lady who had seemingly failed to learn the score, and said:

"Will you tell me where you got your authority to sing in the chorus, madame?"

The girl hesitated for a few seconds, and then, looking straight at Mr. Hammerstein, replied to the effect that she had been several years a quilted chorister.

"But what are your qualifications, madame?" demanded the producer.

"Perhaps I have none, but haven't I got to live?" pleaded the girl.

"Not necessarily," answered Hammerstein quickly.

Wife Forgets, but Mother Remembers Always

By DOROTHY DIX

ACCORDING to the warden of a large penitentiary, the only love that lasts, the only love that is proof against absence and shame, and disgrace, is mother love.

This man, who has had many years' experience with convicted criminals and their families, says:

"The first year that a man is in the penitentiary his wife writes to him every day. She keeps the mails hot with letters. The second year she writes to him two or three times a week. The third year she writes to him once a week, then every other week. Then the letters begin to come further and further apart, until they cease entirely, and by the fourth year he does not hear from her at all.

"But whatever schedule the man's mother adopts at the beginning of his term for writing to him she keeps up. He may be shut up in prison for twenty-five years, but at the end of his time his mother's letters will be coming to him with the same regularity as they did at first.

Death Alone Ends Her Love

"When a wife's letters cease to come to her husband, we know that she has forgotten him, that she has ceased to love him, that she has made new interests and ties, perhaps married again. But when a mother's letters quit coming to her son we know that she is dead."

Was there ever a more beautiful or tragic epic of mother love than that which this warden of a penitentiary shadows forth in his typical comparison between the two loves of woman?

The wife forgets, but the mother remembers. The wife tires in time, but the mother never wearies. The wife's love perishes for want of food to live upon, the mother's love can exist on a single crumb. The world draws the wife back again into its distractions and amusements; all of the world for the mother is bounded by the stone walls in which her son lie imprisoned.

Nor is this strange. The love of a wife is made up of many things—of passions that burn themselves out, of illusions that perish, of ideals that break and shatter. But a mother's love for her child is bone of her bone, and flesh of her flesh. It is part of her very life, and so long as she lives nothing can destroy it.

Women love men for many reasons. There are fierce loves founded on physical attractions that must be daily nurtured on the thrill of a hand clasp, or the ecstasy of a kiss, or else they die. Women who love like this will follow a man to the very gates of a prison, swearing that their love is eternal, and that they will wait a thousand years, if need be, faithfully for him. They are the ones who storm his cell with letters in the early days of imprisonment, but once away from the allure of his presence his spell for them is broken, and in a little while they forget.

There are other women who cannot endure misery. They turn as irresistibly toward the gay things and the bright things of life as a flower turns toward the sun. The thought of the poor doomed creature serving his term in the penitentiary, clothed in hideous stripes, forever an outcast among his fellow men, is so horrible that they lack the courage to endure it.

But Her Love Dies

Such a woman may have wept her heart out as she said good-bye to her husband when he entered that death-in-life, and she may have believed, herself, that she would be faithful to him to the end, but her love dies, drugged to death by her effort to forget the black shadow that hangs over her life.

There are still other women, weak, clinging creatures who lack the strength to stand alone, and who must have some man on whom to hang, some man on whom to lavish their shallow affections. These are the women who have hysterics at their husband's funerals, and marry within the year, and who are torn fainting from their husband's arms when they are sent to prison—and who take advantage of the law that gives a convict's wife an automatic divorce.

These women intended to be faithful, but the tendrils of their hearts instinctively reached out in search of some new object about which to entwine themselves as love ties were formed, and the men in prison ceased to exist for them save as horrible specters that haunted their dreams.

It is easy enough for a man to win a woman's love, but keeping it is another matter, and it is not difficult to see why the wife of a convict should cease to care for him. Indeed, the marvel is when she is able still to love him in the cold gray light of a prison cell.

For one thing she sees him bereft of all personal attractiveness in the most repulsive garb that human ingenuity can devise. For another he is shorn of all illusion.

His sins, his weakness, his crime is laid bare before her eyes. She can no longer believe in him, no longer respect him. She knows him for the poor, contemptible, miserable, guilty wretch that he is.

The Difference in Loves

Finally there is his sin against her that stands between them. Whatever the wrong he has done society, he has done her a tenfold greater wrong. He has shamed and disgraced her. Wherever she goes, so long as she lives, she is branded as a convict's wife. In the first flush of her sympathy for him she may not regard this, but when the prison doors have clanged to behind the man who was her husband and who has put this stigma upon her, when she sees people draw their skirts away from her and hears the whispers that hiss through society when her name is mentioned, she begins to ask herself why she should love this man who has done her such harm. And when love begins to question, the life has gone out of it, and it is already sick unto death.

The mere fact that a wife's love for a man must have something to feed upon, something to cling itself upon, some reason for being, and that a mother's love, asks nothing but just the blessed privilege of loving, is the most wonderful possible illustration of the difference between the love of a wife and mother.

It matters much to the wife what her husband does, but it matters not at all to the mother what her son does, so far as her affection goes. Her heart swells with pride and love when her son grows up to be a great man, honored and revered by his countrymen, but her hands will go out just as quickly to take in her arms the blood-red hands of her boy who is a murderer as they would to clasp those of her son if he were President.

The wife may turn her shuddering eye in horror away from her husband in his convict uniform, but not his mother. She does not see the stripes that are the badge of his disgrace. She only sees her boy, the babe who has lain upon her breast, the little boy who has played about her knee, her son on whom she has builded a thousand hopes, and for whom she has breathed a thousand prayers. her son, no matter what he his done nor what he wears.

She Forgets His Errors

The wife may judge her husband hardly because he has brought disgrace upon her. The mother does not judge. She only pities. She only excuses. She does not remember his sins against him. He may have stabbed her heart a thousand times. He may have blasted her life for years and brought her to poverty in her old age. He may have flung her face and whitened her hair by years of anxiety and suffering, but the tears she has shed over him have washed out the score against him, and she remembers nothing but her love for him.

Absence dims a wife's love, but not a mother's. If a man dies, or is long away from his wife, she often marries, his place is filled, her life moves on, and though, again, that mother never forgets. Her child's place is always empty. No stranger fills it.

A wife's love, under the most severe test to which affection can be put, lasts from three to four years, says the warden of the penitentiary, but a mother's love lasts forever. Blessed be mother love, and fortunate those who have that one faithful one to whom they can turn, secure of a devotion that will never falter. Mother love. It is God's last and greatest consolation to weak and sinning humanity.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

The Management of Man

"I FEEL competent to talk of the Management of Man," said Daysey Mayme Appleton in a special interview to which she had consented with considerable reluctance after having had her picture taken in five poses to illustrate it.

"It is true I have never had a husband, but my mother has one, and every girl whose mother has a husband has a chance to study the genus man from a viewpoint that is not warped by love.

"The first time my father got angry and left the house, my mother and I wore holes in the best rug walking the floor in wild anxiety the three days that he was gone.

"The second time he got angry and started away, I suggested that he take his umbrella, that it might rain while he was gone, and our apparent indifference aroused his curiosity and suspicion, and he didn't go.

"He objected because he wanted him to read the letters from our dear kin, and we stopped asking him. Once more he grew suspicious, and now he asks for them to see what it is we don't want him to see. When we pretend we want him to see a letter we hide it.

"He had the bad habit of cautioning my mother to be careful with her money and every time he gave her a dollar, and I have cured him. I bought a phonograph record, and with tears in my eyes sang and played that he say something touching in it that would remind us of him when he has passed away.

"When he asked what to say, I suggested, with bitter sobs in my throat, that he say in a gruff voice: 'Now, make that money go as far as you can!' Poor, dear father has never said it since.

"When he complains of a button that is off I point to a motto on the wall which says, 'Count your mercies,' meaning to count the buttons that are on, and he will mutter a great deal in trailing father.

"He needed gloves for Christmas, but I gave him a diary. When a man pours out his soul every evening in a diary he wants solitude and quiet, and while it is a great hardship for his women folks to leave the house evening after evening, they are always willing to make the sacrifice. When he objects to our going we have only to say, 'But you must have quiet on account of your diary!'

"I find the long start a man has had before his daughter is old enough to take him in hand a great obstacle in the Training of a Man. I began when I was five and point with pride to the girl babies of to-day, who are beginning at the age of two.

"The time is coming," predicted Daysey Mayme in prophetic tone, "when daughters will begin the gigantic task of Training Father before they are weaned."

A Mother to Her Son

HERE in my arms you lie, babe of my dreams,
Mine by great pain and stress,
Mine for great happiness,
Heart of my heart—my joy,
My own sweet baby boy.

Now while the day is young, hopes may beat high.
Time for the fret and fears,
Time for the mother's tears,
Joy of my life—sweet one,
Clasped to my heart—my son.

Ah, though I know that grief comes with the years,
Now all my pleasure lies
In your dear baby eyes,
Fate looked at me and smiled,
When you became my child.

This is my day of days, care cannot frown,
Far off the weight of years,
Far off the time for tears,
Here—now—my life's begun,
Baby, my child, my son.

How to Be Beautiful

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

DEAR MISS AYER:

I am tall and slim and have very long, thin hands. My knuckles are coarse and show a great deal. Not having much flesh on my hands my veins are very prominent. My hands are always very red and chapped looking.

Could you please tell me how I can remedy these faults?

YOU do not say what kind of work you do, nor how you use your hands, nor what your age is.

All this is very important in considering the hands.

After about thirty-five years of age they begin to look old, unless the subject is inclined to be stout, and this people must begin then to "feed" the tissues of the skin and take extra care of their hands after that age.

The hands, of course, show the state of the general health at once.

Every woman who loves the tight, whose shoes, garters, collars or armholes are uncomfortably tight, is likely to have red hands. Indigestion or sluggish circulation also shows itself in this way.

Now for the remedy. You may be able to make your hands look fatter by rubbing them every night and morning with a good skin food, but I doubt it. Hands are indicative of the general condition up to a certain age. If you get stouter your hands will grow fat, too. After a certain age, called "certain" because it is never the same in any two persons, and varies according to disposition, health and temperament—well, anyhow, after you begin to grow old, your hands will grow thinner, though the rest of your body be quite stout. The skin food you rub on may not make your hands fatter, but it will surely make them soft and you cannot use it too often.

If you keep the skin of your hands in good condition and find out whether it is indigestion, sluggishness of some kind, or too much hot water that is making your hands red, and remedy that, you won't be so conscious of them. Use plenty of cold cream on your hands once a day when washing them in this way.

A woman may be bright, entertaining, clever, well, and be a superior in almost every way, but if she is slim she never does and never will attract attention and real admiration like the woman with the clear, healthy complexion, full, firm bust, shapely shoulders and a plump, pretty figure.

If the girl with the figure is absolutely uninteresting, the slim girl gets her opportunity, and the stupid girl always gets the first choice.

If you are this you know this to be true. Now, perhaps you have tried so-called flesh-builders to increase your figure, and failed to get results—but there is a difference in flesh-builders just as there is in dressmakers. Some are good, some are poor, some are useless.

The first flesh-builder on the market, and which is still doing unlimited good to thousands of women all over the country, is Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder.

Twenty years ago we started to offer the American Public the same as we offer you to-day—a means for treatment at home, at a cost of cost to obtain.

We are willing to help any woman, girl and man to develop and improve their figure, and to give to every girl and woman that it can be done, and which will give them a beautiful figure, with full, firm bust, prettily rounded arms and shoulders, and perfectly developed limbs. That it will positively enlarge your bust measurement from 3 to 6 inches, according to requirements.

Many thousands have taken advantage of this offer with results which you can see plainly in the statement of facts and photos which we will send with your free trial treatment.

Actual photographs and signed letters published by permission are the proofs that we show; no vague promises or statements with hidden meaning, but actual proofs.

Please give the original and oldest flesh-builder on the market one trial. We know what it can do at our expense. It is a purely vegetable treatment, a wonderful nourishing qualities, and is always of benefit to the general health. It will give you a beautifully developed figure in a very short time.

Treatment No. 1 is a general system flesh-builder for both men and women. Treatment No. 2 is for giving development to the bust alone. Please say which one you prefer. Only one coin is required.

We have thousands of letters like the following:

Mrs. H. H. Robbins, of Boston, Mass., says:

"After spending twenty years in trying to develop a bust and spending all kinds of money, I have with your remedy developed a bust, I am proud of, and enclose my latest picture, which you can use, for, if others who have tried as unsuccessfully as I have been, I want to help them, if I can.

My friends all notice the change, I have for many years weighed 105 pounds or less. I now weigh 140.

"It seems quite wonderful for one of my age to be so successful, as I have used no many different treatments, etc., without the least benefit until I began your preparations."

Mrs. C. C. Feldner, of New Orleans, La., says:

"Your treatment is wonderful. I am well pleased with your Flesh Builder and will send for a large order shortly. I could not be without it. My doctor was surprised when I saw him. I asked him if there was anything wrong with me. He said, 'No; what have you been doing with yourself dear, you look so well.' I told him I had been using Dr. Whitney's Nerve and Flesh Builder. Its add to anything on earth had helped me like that has. I am up to a 'wide' leaper. I'm all woman."

Street address on request.

All you need do is to fill out the coupon below with your address. Treatment will be sent in a plain wrapper. We suggest that you write today, now, while you think of it, and put us to the test at once. Address

NOW VILLAIN DESMOND, THE ITALIANS WILL FIX YOU
CURSES! I'LL FOIL CLAUDE AND STEAL HIS SWEET HEART ROSAMOND
CURSES! I'M GETTING DIZZY HOW CAN I MAKE THIS HORSE GUIT
DESMOND MUST TURN AND TURN AND TURN AND ALL NIGHT THE ARABS DO NOT HEAR US
A SQUEAK OF ZE WAGON WHEEL MAYBE IT EEZ ZEE BETALIAN PROVISION WAGON?
SQUEAK CREAK
WE ATTACK ZE ENEMY QUICK WE NEED FOOD
SQUEAK CREAK
SAVED
HORRORS I FORGOT TO PUT ON SOME MORE AXLE GREASE
BETTER DEZMOND WE SAVE HEEM NOW
DESMOND YOU CUR!

Tightly bound, the villain Desmond is now in the power of Claude and the gallant Italians who have come to his aid. A few minutes before and he had the lovers under foot out of the way forever, as he thought. The life of a villain has its ups and downs as an elevator boy's, and a professional villain learns to take the most unexpected reverses in a philosophical manner. With defiance in his heart, Desmond is ready to meet any fate in store for Desmond.

The villain is bound to a wheel high in the air, where he can be alone with his thoughts, if he has any. The wheel will turn and turn and Desmond will spin around until he becomes dizzy, then dizzy, and finally double-dizzy. It is an awful thing to be dizzy, worse to be dippy and nobody wants to be dizzy, no sir-ee. He would be good for nothing-he'd be just going around and around, a useful but not inspiring animal has got into a rut and can never be good for anything else but going around and around, a useful but not inspiring existence.

Down below, a horse plods and plods around and around in a never-ending circle to spin the villain in the air. This horse is a faithful animal, but he has no other qualities to speak of. If he had any speed, he would be used to carry his rider, and finally double-dead. It is an awful thing to be dizzy, worse to be dippy and nobody wants to be dizzy, no sir-ee. he would be good for nothing-he'be just going around and around, a useful but not inspiring existence.

Away in the desert the Arabs hear the squeaking of the unoiled wheel and at once think of the Italian provision wagons. As the Turkish commissariat is notoriously inefficient and corrupt, the Arabs cannot let slip a chance of getting any food, so they prod on the camels and the squeaking comes. A little oil would have prevented all this and Claude's vengeance would not have been interfered with.

Better than the sight of a provision wagon to the Arabs is the sight of their old pal and leader, Desmond, the renegade. And gladly does the scoundrel's vengeance his fellow scoundrels, whom he sees dizzily and which has set his brain revolving in his head. Again is the plan of Claude foiled upon by a slight thing, such as the lack of a little oil on the wheel which was to have spun Desmond to death.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I'm a tough one to kill." He has Claude and Rosamond securely packed away on the back of his camel and is hurrying across the desert to a spot where he can wreak his vengeance without interference by the Italian troops or any other foes of villainy, is Desmond to kill off the lovers at last, or are they to escape? To-morrow's pictures will tell.

Sweet Knowledge

THE successful business man was in a reminiscent mood.

"When we were poor," he said thoughtfully, "we looked forward to the time when we should have a little cottage in the country."

"Yes?" said his friend invitingly.

"Well, when we were rich enough to satisfy this ambition we got tired of going to the same place every Summer. It was monotonous, and we looked forward to the time when we could have another for variety."

"Yes," said his friend again.

"Well, we got another, and then we began to long for a Winter place, so that we shouldn't have to spend so much time in our town house."

"Yes"—for the third time.

"Well, we have them all now."

"And are you happy?"

"I suppose so. At least, I suppose my wife is. She keeps them all shut up most of the time, and goes traveling abroad, but she knows she's got them."

TIT FOR TAT

Mr. Perkly—Oh, if you could only learn to cook as my first wife did.

Mrs. Perkly—If you were as smart as my first husband was you'd be rich enough to engage the best cook in the country.

Bought and Paid For

The Story of the New Play by George Broadhurst

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

By John A. Moroso

Copyright, 1911, by George Broadhurst.

VIRGINIA and Stafford were content to be married in traveling clothes. They would see the yonder couple off and then begin their own honeymoon trip, the plans of which Stafford kept secret.

All arrangements had been made by Stafford for the double wedding. The four met at the little flat in the humble side street, where two automobiles shivered and chugged at the door. They slipped from the house, as the neighbors watched with keen interest from their windows and doorsteps, and were whirled to the home of the minister.

A Matter of Interest

The news that Stafford, the millionaire, was to marry a Miss Virginia Blaine had been passed swiftly to the newspaper offices when the license was secured at the City Hall. The fact of Mr. James Gilley having secured a license, did not appear to be any great concern, but society reporters on all the papers were called into conference hurriedly by their editors, who wanted to know who was Virginia Blaine and where the marriage ceremony was to be performed.

Stafford had made no formal announcement and had advised Virginia against it. No one knew except himself and the minister when and where the double wedding would take place. The fact of his having such great wealth and such prominence in the financial world made his marriage a matter of big news interest.

"Who was Virginia Blaine?" was the one question.

She was, apparently, nobody; for her name was in none of the social registers.

Then came bits of the true romance. From Stafford's hotel the reporters finally secured the information that Virginia Blaine had been a telephone girl.

Reporters and photographers were stationed at the hotel, at the railroad stations and at the West Forty-second street landing, where a barge from Stafford's yacht swung attached to a float.

The two couples were married without the newspaper men tracking them. Once again into the automobiles and Virginia and her husband accompanied Fanny and her husband to the Pennsylvania station. There the photographers rushed about them to make pictures, and reporters clamored for news.

Aboard the Yacht.

Jimmie posed at every opportunity and Fanny fairly had to pull him into their Pullman.

"Believe me, Fanny," said the former third assistant shipping clerk, "this is what I call real class. I think we have the Astor wedding deep in the discard."

Stafford and Virginia lost no time in hurrying from their hedgerow and back to their machine. Then they once more ran the gantlet at the pier and the launch took them out to Stafford's yacht, which was under steam and provisioned for a long journey.

There the bride and bridegroom were safe. Virginia found that her husband had engaged two maids for her and these would be with them all during the honeymoon trip. The bridal stateroom, aboard the yacht, was heavy with the fragrance of roses. The furnishings were on a scale quite short of grandeur and, in fact, everything that money could secure for beauty and luxury had been provided.

Virginia changed to her yachting costumes in a few moments and by the time the white craft with its glistening brass and spotless decks and rails were off the Battery, she and her husband were on the forward deck, clasping hands and facing the new life before them as man and wife.

"And where are you taking me?" she asked; for as yet he had given no hint of their itinerary.

"Where there will be plenty of roses and sunshine and just the two of us together," he said.

"It sounds like paradise," she murmured.

"It will be for me," he told her, putting an arm about her.

The evening came as they put out to sea.

The steersman swung his helm and the yacht, which had been recklessly driving forward southward under full steam.

Two days under bright skies, and with a smooth sea, and the Virginia steamed into the harbor of Charleston, on the Carolina coast. Into a bay as famous for its beauty as the Bay of Naples the anchor was dropped and preparations made for landing.

"We will leave the maids and all servants aboard until we return," Stafford told his bride. "We are going out into the pine forests to my hunting lodge. There we will find a faithful old negro servant and his wife to take care of us. They treat me as if I were a boy of twenty and are not spoiled by knowing that I happen to have a great deal of money."

"Glorious!" cried Virginia, clapping her hands. "And I can help run the lodge, give some of my time to housework and even cook if I want to. May I?"

"Yes, but we have no stove in the lodge," he informed her.

"No stove?" exclaimed Virginia. "Why, what will we do?"

"There is a great fireplace where we will burn huge logs of pine. And in the fireplace are all sorts of hooks and a spit for roasting. We will broil things over live embers and have many a fine feast before the wind blows about the shingles at night."

A New Motor

A new motor of the finest make had been shipped to Charleston for them and was ready at the pier. Stafford drove, flying that money could secure for the machine, and bride and bridegroom started off on the land journey of their honeymoon.

Virginia found the promised blue skies, masses of roses and quaint, old mansions with old-fashioned flower gardens surrounding them. The old city, so different from all the other cities of the New World, enchanted her. From the tall white steeple of Saint Michael's Church they heard chimes, mellowed by more than a century of use, sounding the quarters, and they passed, so beautifully and swiftly.

Over old red brick garden walls the pink sprays of crepe myrtle swung low. About the churches spread graveyards shaded by willows and oaks, quaint, solemn and sacred resting places of the beaux and belles of Colonial days. The city spread alluringly and slender between the two wide rivers which formed the bay as they met to flow to the sea beyond.

All the quaint loveliness of the place appealed to Virginia. She, who had never journeyed abroad from Harlem, for the first time in Cully to realize what her change of circumstances in life would mean for her. Here she had come on a bit of fairyland she had never even heard of. The onetime telephone girl could command any and all of the beauties that the world offered.

A Rose Farm.

"When the real Winter comes," Stafford told her, as they motored through the shady streets with the scent of roses and honeysuckle everywhere, "we will again board the yacht and go to the real Summer seas, cross the ocean and then you shall see Italy and Sicily, the towns of the Mediterranean and, in every place, you shall buy something pretty for yourself to bring back home when we decide to start for New York."

They left the city and over a hard, white road of powdered shell they sped for the pine forests that spread through the mainland.

They stopped at a rose farm, when far into the country, and their well-filled hamper was taken beneath a moss-covered oak. There they picnicked as two children would and finally, intoxicated with the fragrance of the responding gold of red and yellow beauties, Virginia fell asleep for a siesta in Arcady.

Stafford awakened her with a kiss and a little goblet of wine of rare vintage. They resumed their journey, and over the roads, now covered with russet carpetings of pine needles, they made their machine fly so that they would reach their lodge in the wilderness before night.

Far from civilization, amid the reddest pines, over which trailed the golden jessamine vines, they found their lodge. The two old negroes were waiting for them to smile them a welcome and make them comfortable within.

Chill had come with the night, and the great fireplace held a pile of bowling crackling logs. Their flames were reflected in the well-polished hardwood floor, and the walls were filled with ever leting, dancing shadows.

Over mirrors and racks for guns and fishing tackle were fresh, broken branches of pine to fill the interior of the lodge with the healthy odor, and bring keen appetites and splendid slumbers.

In the central room was a rough table with no trace of linen. This was the home of a huntsman, a modern huntsman. Their automobile trunk was soon unpacked and Stafford and Virginia were quickly in camp clothes—he in khaki and flannel shirt and she in corduroy and boots.

Old "Uncle Isaac," who had kept the place for years, brought in his gray-wooled, smiling wife and set the bare table.

A saddle of venison was already on the spit over the red embers of oak and pine. The glistening broilers were buttered and each held two plump partridges. In the ashes, sweet potatoes were roasting.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Up-to-Date Jokes

He was a stage aspirant, and had contrived somehow to gain an introduction to a well-known manager, who agreed to fix a date for a trial. This duly came off, and expectantly the aspirant awaited the verdict.

"What do you think of it?" he asked after a deep silence.

"Well," replied the manager, slowly, "all I can say is that if ever you are put in prison for acting it will be a grave miscarriage of justice."

BABY'S SKIN IN TERRIBLE CONDITION

Now Crust Is Gone and Skin Smooth as Velvet

What was a most pitiful sight, a baby in terrible misery and a mother nearly crazed by suffering, is now transformed to a healthy, healing, crowing baby, and a mother well and joyful. Her letter follows:

"My baby had a crust come on his skin which covered his whole body. My doctor recommended the use of Resinol Ointment. I tried it and it cured him. His skin is now as smooth as velvet. I shall always keep a jar on hand. My hands were cracked and bleeding, and one application of Resinol Ointment cured them."

MRS. M. LANSDOWNE,
Parkleson, N. J.

Resinol Ointment, when applied to inflammatory and eruptive skin diseases, as eczema, pimples, rashes, rash, chafes, cracks, itching and inflamed piles, etc., brings instant relief and is quick in its action. It is the best curative application for sores, cuts, burns, scalds and abrasions of the skin of any kind. Resinol is non-irritant and absolutely harmless even when applied to denuded surfaces of the tender infant's body. It stops itching instantly and promptly allays inflammation. Resinol Ointment comes in opal jars of two sizes, at fifty cents and a dollar. Resinol Soap used with Resinol Ointment expedites the healing. It protects and nourishes the skin. At all druggists. You can make a free trial by writing for sample to Department 6S. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

FEW CHANGES IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—With the exception of Union Pacific, which was ¾ lower, there were few changes of importance in the list at the opening of the stock market to-day. Union Pacific was freely supplied from several sources.

U. S. Steel common opened unchanged, but lost ¼ before the end of fifteen minutes. Fractional losses were sustained by many of the leading issues, but trading was without much importance and the losses simply reflected selling by the professional element.

The telegraph stocks showed the best tone. Reading, Southern Railway and Southern Pacific opened unchanged. Among the declines were Amalgamated Copper ¾, Erie ¾, Atchison ⅝.

Lehigh Valley gained ½ and Canadian Pacific ¾.

The close was quiet and steady. Americans in London were irregular and Canadian Pacific was heavy.

REPORT WAGES ARE TOO LOW

The report of the Minimum Wage Commission, appointed last Summer by Governor Foss, presented to the Legislature to-day outlines a plan for a permanent commission on the wages of women and minors with wage boards for the different industries.

The Commission consists of Dr. Henry Lefavor, head of Simmons College, chairman; Mrs. Glendower Evans, George W. Anderson, John Golden, the labor leader, and Richard Olney, 2d.

The plan represents the most advanced labor legislation proposed in the country and is copied from ideas adopted in England and Australia. It refers to the labor of women and minors, and industries whose capital runs high into the millions. The administration of the plan proposed by this commission is vested in a permanent commission of three members, to be known as the Minimum Wage Commission, who are to hold office for the time actually spent in the service of the Commonwealth.

It is to be the duty of the Commission to investigate living wages paid to the females employees in any occupation in the Commonwealth if the Commission has reason to believe that wages paid to a substantial number of such employees are inadequate to supply the necessary cost of living and to maintain the worker in health.

This investigation may, at the request of the Commission, be conducted by the Bureau of Statistics.

The Commission is also to have authority to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths and take testimony, and to examine into the books, papers and records relating to the matter under investigation.

Report of the Commission.

The commission's report is, in part, as follows:

The commission appointed as its secretary Miss Mary W. Dewson, formerly an assistant in the organization of Miss Wald's district nursing service, and to her able and efficient organization and supervision of the investigations which have been conducted the commission is deeply indebted. A series of public hearings were held in various parts of the State, three of which were public hearings, and two were conferences with employers, representatives of labor organizations, and others who were known to be specially qualified to speak with knowledge of the conditions of labor and with authority as representatives of large numbers of employees or employers. Many letters were received in response to requests for information and suggestions.

The number of females employed in gainful occupations of 21 kinds in Massachusetts in 1905 was 345,000. The only statistics as to their wages were those collected by the Census of 1905, published by the Bureau of Statistics in 1908, from which it appears that 29.2 per cent of women were receiving less than $6 per week, 50.2 per cent less than $8, 70.1 per cent less than $10, and 84.5 per cent less than $12. The average wage of women in the boot and shoe industry was $6.62, in the cotton industry $5.68, in the woolen industry $6.09, in the paper industry $6.75, in the confectionery factories, the retail stores and the laundries $6.50. There is also a large Massachusetts industry with which we are familiar, although not in manufacturing occupations with only brief competition.

The Wage Situation.

Although wage schedules were gathered from 6,000 persons and a certain amount of personal and domestic data for 4,672 persons, it was found impossible to treat elements in relation to the wage situation profitably.

From a Federal report, the wages and a considerable quantity of personal and domestic data relating to 30,000 persons employed in twenty-two establishments and fifty-four household data were gathered. The 2,626 women, each of these families earning a wage, were found to have from 1 to 7 persons dependent upon their earnings, 1,500 certain, 1,126 probable. Of these families earning a wage, 1,126 were found to be living in tenements, 1,500 in private houses. Of the 2,626 women, each of these families earning a wage, 1,126 were found to be living in tenements, 1,500 in private houses. Of the 1,126 tenement families engaged in four different occupations, 1,000 were found to be living in

It is seen that 41 per cent of the candy workers, 10.2 per cent of the saleswomen, 20.5 per cent of the cotton workers and 23 per cent of the cotton workers earn less than $6 a week. That more recently 65.2 per cent, 29.5 per cent, 40.7 per cent, and 20.5 per cent, respectively, earn less than $6 a week. In these four industries, therefore, we find low wage rates for a very considerable body of workers.

The Cost of Living.

A large number of women of eighteen years of age and upward are employed at $6 a week or less. It is evident that a great part of them are receiving compensation that is inadequate to meet the necessary cost of living. The investigations made in thorough investigation into the minimum cost of living, including the established opinions of persons who are well acquainted with the conditions of life in the congested districts of the city, and has examined various budgets which have obtained through inquiry.

When one examines the actual budgets of working families that are driven by low wages to contribute to their support, the inadequacy of the present rate of wages is clearly manifested. In their low rapid expenditures for food and clothing. In almost every case the family is living on a proper dietary requires, while the expenditure for clothing varies with individual judgment and with the requirements of the occupation.

TWENTY-FOUR TIGERS SHOT BY KING GEORGE

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Photographs of King George's shooting expedition in Nepal have arrived in England. They do not throw any light on the story that the monarch, with his gun, though the Mirror says that he added another record to his long list of sporting successes, killed twenty-four full-grown tigers, twenty-four feet in the aggregate length, which, it is said, had to be brought down a tiger and bear with the right and left barrels.

2 DEAD, ONE DYING; OVERCOME BY GAS

Page, sixty-four, a retired printer, of No. 103 Union Park street, and James O'Gorman, aged 50, of No. 34 Tyler street, Lower proper. The third victim is Patrick J. Dwyer of No. 4 North street, who is at the Relief Hospital.

109 MEN SWEPT TO SEA ON AN ICE FLOE

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 15.—Caught upon an ice floe, 109 fishermen were swept into the Caspian Sea to-day, according to reports from Astrakhan. This dispatches said that the floes of the fishermen were in grave danger and that assistance had been sent.

PASTOR PUTS O. K. ON MEN WHO FALL ASLEEP AT CHURCH

It isn't because men are afraid they will go to sleep in church that so many of them do not attend, but they hate to be nudged by their wives and are afraid of the consequences after they get home.

Let them go to sleep if they want to. They are harmless when they are only sleeping men in the pews when I am preaching do not worry me at all. The sleeping man cannot find anything to complain about my sermon or write indignant letters to me afterward.

Let the man fall asleep. The rest will do him good, perhaps as much good as many sermons.

—Rev. Allen A. Stockdale of Union Congregational Church.

BISHOP URGES DOORLESS PEWS

Bishop John W. Hamilton urged all the ministers to take the doors off the pews in their churches at the Men and Religion Forward Movement meeting.

"I am glad that some are taking the doors off the pews and the pries on them," said the Bishop. "I was present when the doors of a church in Boston, some time ago, which cost $325,000, were sold from $6,000 to $500 each, upon the auction block. I do not see that church gold under mortgage for $85,000.

"There is too much aristocracy and freezing shut out from among the churches and the laymen's movement is to break it up. About one-third of the people who go to church will be visitors. Now the pews must come into the pulpits and they must act and react upon each other."

Rev. Charles Steizle of New York, said: "I believe an aggressive evangelism and our social work stands for the scientific treatment of religion, for the workingman is naturally a religious man, and the working-man's religion is right on the square when you put religion before him rightly. I believe in Christian publicity, and thus Men and Religion Forward Movement will make that evident."

Fred B. Smith, the last speaker, said: "Some ministers do not know what the banking interests are doing, and care not about you, and if you knew it, it would make your bones tremble. Unless the ministers of Boston are ready for hard work for the church they will be out of commission.

"These are solemn days for us. Indictment men do not believe in the Protestant Church, because it keeps apart from them. The crisis is on. Business men of this city are crying out for something to be done, and that something is in this movement."

Bishop Hamilton at the close urged ministers to support the laymen in this campaign.

That the church is unduly responsible for the state of social unrest that is all over the country was the declaration of the Rev. Charles N. Steizle of New York, who addressed the mass meeting in the Tremont Theatre. Mr. Steizle said: "Because of the lack of interest shown by the church men were turning more to unionism as a substitute for religion.

Church Not Active Force.

"We say that our gospel is the best solution of the social problem," he said, "but how frequently is it true that when the social problem is at its height and facing the most difficult problem ever faced by any people, the churches leave them to solve their own difficulties?

"The church is responsible for the spirit of social unrest which exists in the world to-day. There are 1,500 men in jail in Darkest Africa, but if the missionaries are sending letters that are unto their boss we will soon hear about labor troubles. They find a continent of people long subjected with low physical and moral ideals. The missionaries will point out those low ideals and will show them the possibilities of life in Jesus Christ, and they will come among them a healthy spirit of social unrest which will not be satisfied until it awoke in the hearts of men all through many a century.

"To-day no socio-minded man will question the fact that the social problem is one of the most important that confronts us," continued Mr. Steizle.

"The awakening has come none too soon, for already the horizon is dark with clouds of social unrest which may be manifest into blessed showers or break upon us in storms of hail. Like a great whirlpool, the city is drawing us itself these elements which fury the unrest."

Tenement Crushes Poor.

"More dangerous than any opposing religious system is the church's apparent failure to recognize the influence of the social and economic conditions which affect many of those whom we are seeking to win to Christ. The filthy, dark tenement, the unsanitary factory, the long hours of labor, the lack of a living wage, the inability to pay doctors' bills, the lack of leisure, the awful spectre of old age—these weigh down the hearts and lives of the multitudes, which to many seem to become a lost art.

"Talk about speeding hell fire to such people! What they want to know is how to get out of the hell in which they are now living. No hell in the future can hold so many terrors for them as the hell in which they now abide.

BURNS PROVE FATAL TO CAMBRIDGE WOMAN

Miss Hannah Quinn, sixty, died at the Cambridge Relief Hospital early to-day from burns which she received when her clothes caught fire from a kitchen stove in her home, 1 Bellevue avenue, Cambridge. Her sister, Miss Mary Quinn, on the second floor of the house at No. 220 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, heard the screams of Miss Quinn rushed down stairs into the back yard. Mrs. William F. Condon, who lives on the first floor, saw the flames and shouted to her husband. The latter ran out into the snow in his bare feet and threw two blankets about the woman to smother the flames. By the time this had been done, she had been fatally burned.

OH JOY, THE "GLOOM SPECIAL" IS CANNED

The gloom special is doomed, for a while, at least, according to report given out to-day from the office of President of the Boston & Maine. In railroad circles it is reported that the Brotherhood of Engineers protested against the train, and are said to have informed Mr. Mellen that one of the best ways of entailment was to save the money it cost to send eight men and the train over the system. The visit of the special was invariably marked by a number of discharges among the road workers.

TRAINS LATE ON NEW HAVEN

The New Haven Railroad brought suburban passengers into Boston to-day in happy-go-lucky-find-a-seat-if-you-can fashion and while it was earnestly denied on the platform than it was on Saturday, passengers complained to-day against being landed at the South Station covered with snow.

No suburban trains came in on time. Passengers sought shelter all the stations along the line and waited in the storm.

"If passengers don't like the New Haven, why let 'em walk," seems to be the answer of the monopoly to the complaints of passengers. Conditions have not improved since Saturday, when the road's council on the welfare of its traffic became dangerous on account of the cold.

Trains were late from five to fifteen minutes. Thousands of passengers were late to their work on this account. The snow, the railroad officials declared, was responsible for the delay.

Commuters declared it is the same story day after day. Besides the lateness, the trains are overcrowded, and the passengers have an uncomfortable ride into Boston.

The trains are made up of an average of eight coaches.

All of the trains from Dedham via West Roxbury were crowded and passengers had to stand inside the coaches and on the platforms. Most of these trains stop at the following stations: Bellevue, West Roxbury, Highland, Bellevue, Roslindale, Forest Hills and Back Bay.

The scheduled time and the time morning trains reached Boston and actually arrived at the South station were as follows:

Trains from	Due	Arrived

Complaints of Passengers.

Many of the commuters complained that the trains were not properly heated.

"My train from Dedham is cold, crowded and late every morning," declared one man. "Why don't you complain?" he was asked. "Complaints have come that before," he said. "What's the use?"

The average commuter has been up against it so much that he has acquired a stoical mien.

Boston awoke to-day to find itself buried with its modern conveniences blocked and shorn of the season. The snow fell in chunks. Early to-day it turned into rain.

Four inches of snow had fallen in Boston up to 10 a. m.

The Edison Illuminating Company and the city street departments began preparations for a general clean up. Hundreds of men with shovels and brooms were put to work on the snow, but the rain saved much trouble and expense.

Slush and ice gave the harbor to-day the appearance of a frozen lake. Navigation was impeded by the ice which during the night had formed.

The big steamer Anglian had to push at full speed for 15 miles down the main channel of 50,000 tons against the ice for fully five minutes before it could make the dock.

Tugs and the ferryboats found the ice troublesome at times and were forced to progress or forcing them to change their courses suddenly.

The storm may continue until to-night. Fourteenths of an inch of rain fell in Boston up to 10 a. m., according to the official report. The wind was from the North.

PLAN SWEEPING TRUST PROBE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—Activity is to be the keynote of Congress from now on, and a probable caucus on the Steel schedule, proposed by the Democrats, to-night, will be the first step toward the speedy consideration of the steel schedule and the wool question will be up for consideration.

The Ways and Means Committee on Rules to-day took up the advisability of ordering a sweeping investigation. A subcommittee into the money trust, the Harvester trust and the sugar trust probe. Although it is by no means certain at this time that Congress will order such an inquiry, most of the Democratic leaders feel that within a month the big probe will be under way.

In the Senate the hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the trusts will be completed this week and the Panama Canal control and antagonism will figure there in hearings. The arbitration parts with Great Britain and France will be scheduled for consideration soon and other matters of importance are before the higher house of the government.

TO ASSIST IN SHOE MACHINERY CASE

William S. Gregg, special assistant to Attorney-General Wickersham, will arrive in this city within the next few days to assist United States District Attorney Asa P. Morse in the proceedings against officials of the United Shoe Machinery Company, who are charged with violating the Sherman law. The hearing on the demurrers will be held before the court on January 22. The suit directed against the proceedings against the leading milk contractors in this city, the hearing is to be conducted on the government suit against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for allowing rate concessions to the Kimball Milk Company.

SWIFT ACTS IN RAIL RATE CASE

Attorney-General Swift to-day entered his appearance before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the complaint of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York and others against the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, et als, which will come up for hearing in Washington on January 22. He will appear in a dual capacity, representing both the directors of the port of Boston and the Commonwealth.

In a statement issued to-day the Attorney-General says:

"One of the most important questions to be settled with reference to increasing the business of the port of Boston is the matter of differential rates now in force, which operate as a tax upon traffic going through the port of Boston and in favor of the ports of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, resulting in the shipment of much traffic to these ports through the other cities named, to the detriment of Boston.

"The case is pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission a complaint of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York et als. vs. the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company et als., which is now on the docket for hearing January 22, at Washington. This case raises specifically the point of rates to and through the city of Boston.

"Many other questions of interesting petitions representing the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Virginia and others, the Boston Chamber of Commerce has already entered its petition."

POVERTY ENDS LIVES OF FOUR

In the North Grove Street Morgue, where they were placed early to-day, are the bodies of four victims of poverty and privation, representing three generations of the family.

Death in each case was due to suffocation. In the night, huddled closely together in small, bare apartment at No. 135 Everett street—the heart of the congested West End—a grandmother, mother and two small children slept.

They were Mrs. Catharine Connors, fifty years of age, a widow and an invalid; Mrs. Mary Logue, her daughter, twenty-five years of age, a widow and the two small children of Mrs. Logue, John, two and a half years, and Lillian, eighteen months of age.

It was a little warmer last night. The little family, after a day of rest, went to bed early—their accustomed plan of escaping the cold. They slept soundly. The next day midnight when all that part of the city was wrapt in slumber—the appliances of pain and suffering—a fire broke out in the apartment, quietly, persistently.

It may be that a lamp fell over and the oil ignited. How the blaze began will never be known. With the family deeply slept, oblivious of danger and of trouble to come, the flames crept through the floors. And it was found that the subtle messenger of death had crept in at night and the little family—the grandmother, the mother and the two children had been wafted on the wings of smoke beyond the realm of earthly privation.

ONE MORE SHOW FOR AUTO MEN

By J. C. KERRIGON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—After, the day of rest, those interested in the motor show now being held in the Grand Central Palace returned to their exhibiting duties fully determined to increase the already good record that they have made during the last three days.

Others who were engaged in the show, which closed at Madison Square Garden on Saturday night, took up the work of preparing for greater activity in the commercial field, and to-day are hard at work getting the commercial motor vehicles in readiness for the opening of the pleasure vehicle show in Madison Square Garden to-night.

There is a sense of great activity in and around the Garden to-day, and it is confidently expected that at the opening hour of the show this evening all of the exhibits will be in position and New York will witness the biggest display of motor vehicles of both the gas and electric line that has ever been seen here.

Two New Truck Builders.

There is much that can be said about the show—much that is of vital importance to the business man as showing the ways and means of greater distributing efficiency, but the commercial end is decidedly valuable.

The pleasure vehicles now on exhibition at the Palace show will not be overlooked throughout the week, but it is proof of the said that the week will be one in which the commercial vehicle will be the star.

Since last year a number of the long-established manufacturers have entered the truck field, and this year appear as builders of high-class, heavy service trucks.

The trailer and the semi-trailer truck will show trucks for the first time. They are being now assembled in order to test traction capacity, and from what has been seen, it is believed that the use of the motors in the garden show will be of the four-cylinder variety, while the remaining 10 per cent. will be the two-cylinder opposed type in the light delivery wagon.

All Kinds of Trucks.

Multiple disc clutches, four-speed transmissions of the selective type, and enclosed driving chains are tendencies that are expected to be universal in the new. More makers have announced that they will use the left side drive than in the past, the left side drive being valuable, as it gives the driver a clear view of his machine on the side on which the passes traffic going in the opposite direction.

The price range from $2,000 to $5,000 for the chassis, in the Garden show will be found complete with electrically driven vehicles, ranging from a small delivery wagon to those of the five-ton capacity. There are to be in all thirty-four exhibits of trucks in the Garden.

The present weather conditions in this city are such as interfere with the truck manufacturers and exhibitors in demonstrating the efficiency of the motor-propelled commercial vehicle, as the streets and roads are in wretched condition as far as traffic is concerned, and the motor trucks are progressive in their work, as the horse-drawn vehicles hardly seem to be performing even their usual amount of good work.

Boston Auto Well Displayed.

In speaking of this brings to mind the excellent showing that is being made at the Boston Auto Show, and the Decatur one and one-half-ton truck in their new engine-test, which is a feature of the show in progress for almost a week.

While waiting for the unloading of the truck show in Madison Square Garden, the public at large still displays a great interest in the Palace show, where considerable business is being done.

Perhaps the most elaborate display of trucks in the Palace is being made by the Grands and Kelly companies—two lines of trucks that have made good wherever they have been driven.

The Kelley truck, which is handled in Boston by the Kelley Motor Truck Company, was formerly known as the Frayer-Miller, and is the same high class of vehicle won such distinguished honors in the Boston AMERICAN endurance contest of over a year ago and which is seen in large numbers in and around Boston.

Sales Manager Johnson of the Boston office is on the grounds and he is decidedly well pleased with the interest being accorded the truck here.

Some of the Latest Cars.

The Tremain truck, which is shown in various sizes and motors from the light 1,000-pound delivery wagon up to the five-ton, and which is handled in Boston by the Whitney-Barney Company, occupies a very prominent position on the main floor of the Palace, and in point of interest and efficiency is second to none of the trucks, not only in the show, but in the country.

Among the latest light delivery trucks is the Koehler, which is produced by the H. J. Koehler Company. It is a two-cylinder horizontal opposed, four-cycle truck, selling at a reasonable price.

In this truck, simplicity seems to have been the motive in design of the entire motor-tion, the idea being to produce a commercial car that would be simple and strong enough to stand the continuous wear and tear that the average driver gives it.

STATIONARY FIREMEN MEET IN FALL RIVER

FALL RIVER, Jan. 15.—Delegates from all over the State assembled here to-day for the annual convention of the International Union of Stationary Firemen of the First District. The president, E. E. Thornton of Boston, presided. The delegates were welcomed to the city by Mayor Jennings and Alderman Higgins. Among the speakers will be John Golden of this city, president of the Textile Workers of America. A banquet will be tendered to-night to the visitors. The convention will close Tuesday night, but it is expected that many delegates will remain until Friday night for the annual convention ball.

MRS. HEARST GIVES CLUB HOUSE TO MINERS

LEAD, S. D., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Phoebe Hearst has, through the Homestake Mining Company of Lead, which owns the mines, the 2,000 miners in that institution, a $75,000 club building. Plans for the building have been made, and the erection of the work will begin immediately. The club will be run by the employees' association under the supervision of officers of the mining company. Among the features of the planned along the lines of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mrs. Hearst already has a number of benevolent institutions in the city.

SALOON KEEPER KILLED AND ROBBED

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—With his skull crushed and the cash register looted, Simeon Peters was found unconscious behind the bar of his saloon at No. 419 East One Hundred and fourth street to-day. He died after being removed to Harlem Hospital. The police found that the assailants, after striking down Peters, locked the doors and looted the place at their leisure. Detectives are directed at four men, who had been hanging about the place for several days and nights.

MORGAN, FRICK AND KAHN MEET IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 15.—French financial circles are intensely interested in the report that J. P. Morgan, Henry C. Frick and Otto Kahn are to hold a conference in Paris within the next few days. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Frick are already here and Mr. Kahn is on his way to London on the Lusitania after a hasty departure from New York.

BOSTON AMERICAN ICE CARNIVAL

CHARLES RIVER BASIN, SATURDAY, JANUARY 20.

Name.....

Address.....

Event.....

The big Ice Carnival is the coming event that holds the attention of Boston and New England just now.

This Ice Carnival is the one which will be held by the AMERICAN on Charles River Basin next Saturday afternoon, January 20.

Fred W. Adams, No. 31 Vinton street, Dorchester, half-mile race.

Charles Maloy, No. 37 Royal avenue, Cambridge, half-mile race.

Dennis L. McLaughlin, N. E. T. & T. Co., Natick, Mass., five-mile race.

Paul Messelian, No. 120 Perham street, West Roxbury, half-mile race.

Francis Mellanee Sullivan, No. 93 Baldwin street, Charlestown, quarter-mile race.

Miss Edna Kales, No. 7 Mill street, Dorchester, quarter-mile race.

Miss Elizabeth Kales, No. 7 Mill street, Dorchester, half-mile race.

Ida Forrest, No. 837 Freeport street, Dorchester Heights, half-mile race.

Basil Hall White, No. 73 Kenwood road, Roslindale, half-mile race.

Miss Dorothy Hall, No. 207 Sumner street, Roslindale, half-mile race.

Robert Hall, Jr., No. 164 Laurel avenue, quarter-mile race.

Merritt To Go After Record.

Many special features are to be seen at the Carnival, in addition to the various skating races by William H. Merritt of St. John, N. B., the professional skating champion of the world, will skate an exhibition race against time.

Mr. Merritt will try to lower the record he already holds. He is a marvelous skater, a veritable Mercury on steel. An opportunity to see him in an exhibition race, free of cost, is one of great moment to the public of Greater Boston and New England.

Gordon Thompson of Spring Hill, N. S., the amateur skating champion, will be at the Carnival.

Mr. Thompson challenges any New England man skater to a skating match at distances from 220 yards to five miles.

He also challenges any man skater to meet him in a hockey match on skates.

A hockey match between two fast teams will be another stirring event in the Carnival card.

The regular races, already announced, will include:

Championship Races for Men.

Quarter-mile dash.

One-mile race.

Five-mile race.

Open-to-All Events.

Half-mile race for boys eighteen or under.

Quarter-mile race for boys twelve or under.

Half-mile race for girls.

Remember, these events are absolutely free to contestants. No entrance fee of any kind is required. The AMERICAN also intends this Ice Carnival to be without expense of any kind to either contestants or spectators.

Entry blanks are printed again to-day for contestants to fill out, and the entry blank from the AMERICAN, fill it out and mail it to the Ice Carnival Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street, Boston.

Contestants in the three championship events bear in mind that they must be duly registered with the New England Skating Association. The races are under the auspices of that well-known organization.

Now is the Time to Enter.

Skaters who are not registered and who intend to enter the championship events should attend to registration at once. The Carnival is only six days off. Write your name, address and telephone number to C. Johnson, secretary, No. 180 Summer street, Boston.

No registration is necessary for the open-to-all events. But entry blanks must be filled out for all events. Entries are coming in already. The Ice Carnival Editor is assured of lively competition for the medal prizes which will be awarded each race.

A girl called the Ice Carnival Editor on the telephone Saturday night and asked:

"Do I have to belong to any skating club to enter in the girls' race?"

She was promptly told that she did not have to belong to any skating club or other organization to enter in the open-to-all events.

The only thing in that line is the registration with the New England Skating Association, required by the championship events.

All parties, however, are invited and so on, must be addressed to the Ice Carnival Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston.

NORWOOD MAN IS VICTIM OF SWINDLE

John M. Arvidson of No. 47 Cedar street, Norwood, gave up $100 of hard-earned money to speculate in a mining scheme with three unknown men and lost. Then he went to the Court square police station and reported the case. He told Lieutenant Hyland that he met the three men and they told him they had a sure way to make money. He was willing to learn, but found it was they who made the easy money.

FURMAN CONFESSES TO KILLING BROTHER

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Complete confession to the murder of his brother Theodore was made here to-day by Eugene Furman. The victim was cut to pieces and buried in a car of hog offal that was being shipped from the city. The murder occurred on the night given in the police by Joseph Furman, another brother, who accused Eugene of having committed the murder.

Mr. Crane, the Human Millionaire, Said it

The Monkey Said It Also, and the Muskrat and the Crab and the Oyster. They Said: "We Have Enough Knowledge"

Copyright, 1912, by the American-Journal-Examiner.

Toward the end of his life he occupied his leisure with attacks on education, and especially on what he called "college education."

When he died he had just written his opinion that a great university should be torn down, and the site upon which it stood used "in some useful way."

Mr. Crane, being rich, has been widely quoted, in accordance with our American custom.

If he had been POOR, no attention would have been paid to him. His name would not have appeared in print. Those that heard him would have said, "There is a poor, worthless failure, who doesn't even know the benefit of education."

But this particular able, although ignorant, man accumulated millions in the easy money market of America. And the things that he said about education traveled far, and might do harm if they were not contradicted.

For the intelligent human being it is only necessary to realize that Mr. Crane, denouncing the education which he did not possess, is one link in a long chain of living beings.

The first men that lived on this earth became men because they began using their brains and developing an education. The earliest men saw the long teeth and the long claws of the tiger. And they saw the big tusks of the elephant. And, sitting down with a piece of flint, they chipped off the flint and made a very long, sharp weapon bigger and harder than the tiger's claw or tooth. This artificial tooth, made of stone, they fastened to a wooden handle. And with this wooden spear they were able to conquer bigger and stronger animals and supply themselves with meat. That was the beginning of education.

And you may be quite sure that the undeveloped and uneducated monkey in the tree, who saw the half-developed man making his spear with the stone tip, denounced that step in education as foolish and useless.

Nevertheless, the man-monkey went ahead and got his weapon with the big stone tooth in the end of it, and by and by he got other weapons. And now he has the repeating rifle. And by and by, with a little MORE education, he will get rid of that.

When the wasp, savage and cruel, living by itself, saw the bees gathering in swarms, selecting a hive, storing honey for the Winter, taking care of the young, respecting and protecting the queen, learning the arts of education, the wasp probably thought the bees very foolish, and that the hive might well be torn down to make room for "something useful."

When the muskrat sat on the bank of the river and saw the old beaver teaching the young beavers to cut down a tree and throw it across the stream and build a dam, using his tail for a trowel, the muskrat thought such things foolish and denounced that kind of education probably.

But denouncing education didn't make the muskrat the equal of the beaver.

When the clam and the oyster, glued to one spot on the ocean's bed, saw their neighbor stretching out a kind of a muscular finger and pulling himself along the bottom of the water, they probably thought that that was foolish, useless progress.

When the first animals from the sea began crawling up on the land, accustoming themselves to living in the open, thin air as well as in the water, they were probably denounced as foolish and uselessly ambitious by the old-fashioned fishes.

Ever since life began on the world conservatism has denounced the new thing, ignorance has denounced knowledge.

But the new things follow, one after the other, and knowledge goes on steadily.

Mr. Crane was useful as a business man, and admirable as a business man. In his role of individual mud-wasp criticising the beehive, or of muskrat criticising the beaver village, he was not quite so successful.

But even as a muskrat and beaver he was useful, for criticism and conservatism are necessary.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

A PLEA FOR THE HORSE

Editor AMERICAN:

Realising and appreciating the value of your paper as one of the results of all things good, I beg to offer my consideration of the firms and individuals that use the noble animal, the horse, who in this ice and snow ignore their duties toward the animal by refusing to have them properly shod. It is a shame to see these poor dumb creatures falling here and there, with the chance of broken limbs.

There should be a law to compel all owners of horses to have them properly shod and in this way bring them to their senses. Many horse owners rely on their horses to do a day's work and they are, in a small way, silent partners in their business success and should be given some consideration.

A man owning an automobile truck would never think of running his machine without tires, neither should a horse be used on slippery streets unless well shod. The owner loses more in time lost than the cost of keeping the horse on his feet.

Automobile owners take good care of their cars; they must, to get the work out of them. Owners of horses that can't afford an auto truck should do all in their power to keep the animal machinery in good working order. S. A. PICKERT, Boston.

We Can Be What We Will Be by Doing a Few Simple Things and Quitting Others

Just by Lacking Will Power to Bring Them Into Play, Man Has Left Dormant Incalculable Powers and Abilities; Therefore, the World Is Overrun by Failures in Health, Happiness and Endeavor.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Written for the Boston American by

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

ALL over our land to-day there are hundreds and thousands of people who begin the New Year with unhappy ideas about their physical condition, who could become well and strong and full of vitality, BEFORE ANOTHER YEAR DAWNED, without the aid of doctors, medicine, or change of climate, if they used enough will power to work for such a result. But the individual who has developed will power sufficient to make him do a few simple things EVERY DAY, or refrain from doing a few foolish things, is rarer to find than pearls in clams.

It seems curious to think of the long eons in which Man has been evolving from lower forms of life to higher, and of his inexhaustible powers and abilities which he has left dormant, just by lacking the will power to bring them into play.

Therefore the world is overrun by failures in health, happiness and endeavor.

Physical Education Should Be Made Compulsory

A literary man who was delicate and slight of build once decided to saw twenty cords of wood.

Before he had cut through one log he was exhausted, and his friends indulged in jibes and jests at his expense.

But despite this (or perhaps because of it), he kept at his allotted task.

After a few days he found he did not become so quickly exhausted and that he was feeling stronger in his chest and arms.

By the time his task was finished he experienced such benefit that he resolved to take up some physical exercise calling forth the same amount of energy and use of time every day.

Although a middle-aged man, he increased his chest measure two and five-eighths inches in SIX WEEKS' TIME by using one hour a day at gymnasium work.

Besides enjoying good health for the first time in years and finding his mental powers greatly increased.

Nothing truer was ever written than William Blaikie's words on this subject of the need of regular, systematic physical exercise in our schools:

"PHYSICAL EDUCATION SHOULD BE MADE COMPULSORY IN EVERY SCHOOL IN THE LAND. Is it not as important to possess good health as to figure correctly?

"Look at the next ten children you meet, and say if three of them are well built, strong and hearty; clear-skinned, lustrous-eyed, quick and sure of movement; rich with life and vigor; and in every way satisfying in build and action. You would not buy a horse that did not embody these qualities. Is not your child almost as important as your horse? And there are many special cases. You will find them in every school room in America; poor, half-built—no, not even quarter-built children; with thin legs, thinner arms, slim necks, with every chest-chamber too small; pallid faces, a weak walk, and run—they can scarcely run a block—and they look ready to faint if they try it. Weak and timid all the time; living—well, they exist—but do not live. Yet each such child is just as dear to its parents as yours are to you. If these can be raised, and not only raised, but built up just where they need it, and can be at length brought to a lusty, splendid manhood, ready for anything, will not he be a friend indeed who does that for such a boy?"

This can be done by persistent, unremitting work; work requiring only ONE HOUR A DAY, added to the relinquishing of cigarettes and meat diet.

Any Woman Can Gain Health and Beauty by Exercising

Women may be found all over the world who are bemoaning the loss of youthful contour of face and form, and of the creeping on of maladies and ailments, who could regain beauty, health and comfort, with no expense, no physician and no machinery, save the use of the machinery of the brain and persistent exercise of body and mind regularly. To join a gymnasium is an excellent method of making such exercise regular; it is most advisable. But if the gymnasium is not available ANY WOMAN CAN GAIN HEALTH AND BEAUTY BY EXERCISES IN HER ROOM if she cares enough about results to keep up the work and use common sense in her diet at the same time.

WE CAN BE WHAT WE WILL TO BE.

The Other Half

By PERCY SHAW

SOME fellers, the smug an' sleek ones,
Preaches loud the gospel of grace;
They points to us poor an' weak ones
An' they sneers at the human race;
Strangers they are to bread lines,
To the rag-tags an' zero blasts,
But we read their words in headlines
As we shiver between our fasts.

But that's a poor compensation
For the things that we might have done;
What need of a dispensation
For the battles we might have won?
Them chaps with the big fur collars,
With their cars and their clubs an' friends,
How easy they take the dollars
That the might of the dollar sends.

Ever stand froze on a gratin'
In the two A. M. or about,
One cent in your pocket waitin'
Till the city edition's out?
To tramp with your body achin'
On a hunt for a chance to live?
To hear with a soul nigh breakin'
That there wasn't no job to give?

It ain't that the world ain't growin'
The way that it ought to grow;
It's us that ain't quite a-knowin'
All the things that we ought to know,
It's us that's got somethin' lackin'
That breaks us before we can start,
Robes us in sorrer an' sackin'
An' sucks out the pride from the heart.

Twice in a while we some creepin'
From corner of alley an' park;
When most of the city is sleepin'
We cry for our lives in the dark.
When the cold winds whistle skyways;
When the red sun simmers an' stews;
Your brothers drop in the byways
An' you read their names in the news.
